President Moszicki of Poland, who was married yesterday.

PRESIDENTIAL ROMANCE

DR. MOSZICKI WEDS SECRETARY

Warsaw, Oct. 10.

The President of Poland has discovered romance after 65 years.

He was married to-day to his secretary, Maria Dobrzanska, who earlier this year was divorced from her husband, Captain Nagorna, by special Papal dispensation.

Large crowds turned out to see the wedding which was attended by the Prime Minister, M. Alexander Prystor, while Cardinal Kokowsky blessed the union.

Dr. Ignatius Moszicki, who will be 66 years of age in December and who has never married before, has been President of Poland since 1926, although he is still regarded very much in the light of an instrument in the hands of Marshal Pilsudski, the real ruler of Poland.

He belongs to no political party. His interests are scientific, being an expert in electro-chemistry. He discovered the electrical process for the synthetic manufacture of nitrates and also devised a condenser which was valuable in the early days of wireless telegraphy. —Reuter.

SOCIALIST RIOTS

NEWSPAPER BAN SEQUEL

Vienna, Oct. 10.

Serious riots have broken out at Ottakring, the working-class suburb of Vienna, following a Socialist demonstration of protest against the Government's ban on the Arbeiter Zeitung.

High indignation in Socialist circles at the action has led to threats of a general strike, but the leaders are at present undecided. The rank and file, however, took matters into their own hands last night and serious disturbances occurred.

Mounted police charged the demonstrators, injuring several and making many arrests before peace was restored.

BRIDGES GUARDED.

Extra police have now been drafted into other working-class districts of Vienna as a precautionary measure in consequence of further demonstrations, while all entrances to the city bridges over the Danube are heavily guarded by police. —Reuter.

SOVIET REQUESTS REJECTED

ALLEGED POLICE THREATS TO EMPLOYEES

HOSTILITY CONTINUES

MOSCOW, OCT. 10.

A GRAVE VIEW IS TAKEN OF THE SITUATION ARISING FROM THE ARREST OF FOUR SOVIET EMPLOYEES OF THE CHINESE EASTERN RAILWAY AND THE INTERFERENCE OF "MANCHUKUO" WITH THE NORMAL MANAGEMENT.

Further incidents are occurring almost hourly and the Tass Agency to-day issues details of fresh developments. The Soviet does not make any attempt to hide the fact that the whole question of joint management of the railway is now being fought out.

Although much correspondence has already passed concerning the arrest of the Soviet employees without providing any satisfaction for the Moscow Government, M. Slavutsky, the Soviet Consul-General in Harbin, to-day made a formal enquiry regarding the charges on which the arrests were made.

A representative of the Manchukuo Foreign Office replied that they are "merely arrested for examination" in connexion with an inquiry concerning suspected transgressions of duty.

M. Slavutsky insisted upon their immediate release. The Manchukuo representative undertook to forward the request to his government, but declared that the Consul-General would not be allowed to visit the arrested men.

MANCHURIANS RETIRE.

The Manchurian Assistant Manager of the Railway has requested the chairman of the Council of the Administration to recognise the Manchurians appointed to the Council in the place of the Soviet employees.

The chairman refused, upon which the Manchurian members of the Council left the gathering en masse and the meeting closed owing to the lack of a quorum.

MANCHULI THREATS.

HISHIKARI PAPERS.

Tokyo, Oct. 10.

The expulsion of the Tass correspondent in Tokyo, because he circulated the text of the Moscow revelations in regard to Japan's alleged plans to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway, is possible.

The revelations were given prominence in this morning's press, which carries brief but indignant comments.

The Yomiuri urges that unless the Soviet apologises and withdraws the allegations, the Tass Agency in Tokyo should be closed and the Railway negotiations here (for the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway) discontinued. The paper is inclined to align itself with the reactionaries who are urging the severance of relations with the Soviet.

INTENSE INDIGNATION.

Intense indignation at Moscow's publication of the alleged Hishikari documents is expressed by the War Office, where a spokesman intimated that the Army is insisting that the Foreign Minister, Mr. Hirota, protest strongly, backing his protest with a demand for complete retraction and an admission that the documents are spurious, together with a warning that sterner action will be taken if the Soviet declines.

FOREIGN OFFICE ATTITUDE.

The Foreign Office is equally indignant, but is awaiting reports from the Japanese Ambassador to Moscow before deciding on a definite line of action. A spokesman intimated to-day that the continuance of diplomatic relations between Japan and the Soviet depends on the "Soviet's response to some form of demarche which Japan will make shortly in this matter."

Denying that General Hishikari is planning to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway with the co-operation of Manchukuo, the spokesman emphasized that if trouble with the Soviet was contemplated, the Sixth Division would not have been withdrawn to Japan. The withdrawal of this Division has been nearly completed. —Reuter.

FRESH FRICTION.

The Soviet General Manager of the C.E.R. has countermanded all orders issued by the Manchukuo assistant manager, resulting in serious complications.

Manchukuo is considering counter measures. —Reuter.

SIR JOHN SIMON OFF TO GENEVA

First Attends Meeting of Cabinet

London, Oct. 10.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, left Croydon by air for Paris this afternoon, and is proceeding to Geneva by to-night's train. Before leaving London he received the German Ambassador, Doctor Von Hoersch.

Sir John Simon had originally intended to proceed to Geneva last week-end, but delayed his departure to be present at yesterday's Cabinet meeting, when the latest developments in the Disarmament situation, including the German "observations," communicated last week, were considered. —British Wireless.

ANGLO-AMERICAN DEBT TALKS

RESUMPTION MADE AT WASHINGTON

London, Oct. 10.

The Anglo-American debt talks were resumed at Washington to-day.

Sir Frederick Leith Ross of the British Treasury, Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, and Mr. Bowler, Financial Secretary to the British Embassy, represented the British Government, while Mr. Acheson, United States Under Secretary to Treasury, and Mr. Livesey represented the American Government. —British Wireless.

London, Oct. 10.

The latest Treasury returns show that the ordinary revenue for the current financial year up to October 7, amounted to £287,228,723. At the corresponding date of last year, the amount stood at £280,725,041.

The ordinary expenditure to date for the current year totalled £360,670,236, which is about £35,500,000 less than the total ordinary expenditure at the corresponding date of last year. —British Wireless.

THE MOTOR SHOW

CARS FROM £100 TO £4,000

NEW FEATURES AT OLYMPIA

London, Oct. 10.

The International Motor Show which will open at Olympia on Thursday and which will continue for ten days, is attracting large numbers of visitors to London from abroad.

Undoubtedly the main feature of the show is the adoption at least by practically all the British models of simplified gear mechanism.

Six years ago, the self-change pre-selective device was pioneered by a British firm and this has not a fashion which has, in varying forms, been adopted by all the leading manufacturers.

Drivers of new models are thus relieved of all mechanical anxiety and an important contribution is thereby made to road safety.

The respective numbers of cars and chassis on view will be Britain 205, Canada and the United States 34, France 33, Italy 14, Belgium 4, and Czechoslovakia 3. The prices of the models range from £105 to £3,540. —British Wireless.

KINGSFORD SMITH

Well Inside the Scott Schedule

London, Oct. 10.

Air Commodore Sir Charles Kingsford Smith, who left England last Wednesday to fly to Australia, continues to make record progress.

To-day he reached Sourabaya in the Dutch East Indies, having covered over seven thousand miles in six days.

He is using a new all-British Percival Gull low-winged, Moth aeroplane, and is at present well ahead on the schedule of the existing England-Australia record of eight days, 20 hours 47 minutes set up last year by Mr. Charles Scott. —British Wireless.

The House of Representatives to-day approved by 58 votes to 22, the action of the Senate in rejecting the Philippines Independence Act. —Reuter.

NEW ANTI-WAR TREATY

SOUTH AMERICAN PACT

SIX COUNTRIES SIGN

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 10.

A new anti-war treaty which is hoped will serve to stabilise conditions in South America has been drawn up and signed by the leading States of Central and South America.

The anti-war treaty outlaws aggressions and the forcible acquisition of territory.

It was signed at Rio to-day by the representatives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico, Paraguay and Uruguay in the presence of many diplomats and notabilities.

The only notable absentee from the list of signatories is Bolivia, even now engaged in a dispute with Paraguay (a signatory) regarding territorial rights in the Gran Chaco.

Other South American States, Peru and Colombia among them, are expected to adhere to the Treaty shortly. —Reuter.

Mr. R. Hall, Mr. A. W. G. H. Grantham, Mr. G. W. Coyne and Mr. B. A. Froux were among passengers who left the Colony aboard the s.s. President Coolidge at midnight.

Members of the Peak Club are reminded that entries for the Contract Bridge Tournament to be held in the Club on Saturday, at 9.30 p.m. will close at 8 p.m. on Friday.

U.S. STRIKE MENACE

CONTINUE TO HAMPER RECOVERY

CODE DISPUTES

Washington, Oct. 10.

Conflicts between workers and employers, the continuance of strikes all over the country, continue to hinder progress towards recovery.

Thousands of steel and coal strikers in the Pittsburgh area returned to work to-day, but there are still thirty-five thousand miners refusing to return to work in Western Pennsylvania.

Coal strikes continue to create serious problems for Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Alabama.

SILK STRIKE.

Meanwhile, silk strikers from New Jersey and Pennsylvania are protesting vigorously against the wage provided in the Silk Industry Code, and ten thousand automobile and tool and die strikers have protested to the N.R.A. alleging that their employers are deliberately violating the Recovery Act.

The possibility of the National Recovery Administration regulating all wages soon is now envisaged.

A suggestion that this solution of difficulties be studied with a view to adoption was made by Senator Wagner. In the course of an appeal to the National Federation of Labour to persuade its members to arbitrate before striking.

CONSUMERS' BOARD.

The Consumers' Board has decided to create local branches to prevent profiteering and has also appealed to Mr. Jokes, the Secretary of the Interior Department, to postpone the plans for fixing the price of oil because, it is contended, the consumers' petroleum bill will be increased at the rate of $500,000,000 per annum, while the wages of oil employees will not be increased under the Code by more than $125,000,000. —Reuter.

GERMANY'S GESTURE

FRANCO-GERMAN TALKS

Geneva, Oct. 10.

An important and unexpected development in the disarmament position occurred to-night, although the prospects have not been distinctly improved, except as showing a more friendly atmosphere.

Herr Nadelin, the chief German delegate, called upon the French Foreign Secretary, M. Paul Boncour, and was closeted with him for about ninety minutes, during which their rival standpoints were discussed from every angle.

Herr Nadelin was markedly conciliatory. He expressed the sincere desire of his government to reach a solution of the disarmament question, but they were compelled to take the stand that the convention must be such that Germany could freely accept, and carry out.

The whole tone of Herr Nadelin's approach was friendly, but M. Paul Boncour, emphasised that France was unable to make concessions on the fundamental points. —Reuter.

LONDON CHINESE AND DOUBLE TENTH

London, Oct. 10.

Sixty Chinese students and numerous British friends packed China House to-day at an informal tea party held in celebration of the anniversary of the Republic. The guests were received by Mr. Su Liao-chang, the warden of China House.

U.S. WHEAT EXPORT SUBSIDY

Agreement Signed by Mr. Wallace

Washington, Oct. 10.

Mr. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, has signed the Wheat Marketing agreement, subsidising the export of about 35,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat from the North-West States.

The export of the cereal will start almost immediately. —Reuter.

STOP PRESS

Washington, Oct. 10.

Following the war debt conventions to-day, Mr. Acheson revealed that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross urged the radically altered world economic conditions, unforeseen when the settlement was made, as justification for the reduction of Britain's obligations.

No suggestion was advanced regarding the amount Britain had in mind to offer as a basis of settlement.

The British delegate asserted that the United States tariff wall had interfered with payments in goods thus limiting the scope in which transfers could be made.

The negotiations will be resumed to-morrow. —Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Here's a Perfect Match for Summer Hospitality
PAINT THE CUSHION'S GAY PATTERN ON YOUR TABLE TOP

Summer is replacement time, so far as furniture is concerned. With the bright summer sunlight, you can get an accurate idea of just what your home needs much more easily than you can when hearth fires and electric lights soften things.

While turning your living room into a summer sanctuary, how about a few very summery looking things? Or, if you have the advantage of possessing a good porch, why not move the family out into it for all their relaxation? Better still, if you have a yard that is somewhat secluded by trees or fences, get everybody out where their feet can rest some time during each day.

Gingham Lends Gay Air
This year the chair and table ensembles are most enticing. Any home can use such an ensemble practically any time it appears on the horizon. For little cost and less effort, you can assemble your own.

A neat trick is to paint a very cheap rattan chair and table, enamel, and shellac them and then upholster the chair in gay summer gingham and paint the top of the table to match the gingham's design.

The chair and table shown here are an ideal pair for porch, garden or summer living room. The don or summer living room. The chair, of white enameled rattan, has a cushion and upholstered back of black and white plaid gingham. The table repeats the design in enamel on its round top.

Carrying out the design of a material on a wood surface is not as complicated as it may seem. By ruling straight lines in pencil and

Cautious With Flowers!

Flower patterns are, of course, more difficult and should not be attempted unless the painter has some knowledge of drawing and design.

A quickly drying lacquer is the best medium for this sort of work. A coating of white shellac can be added for extra service.

Flips of curtains and table in this manner are also effective. While this sort of thing done with restraint adds novel charm to a room, too much of it, too many matching articles would only be garish or monotonous. Be startling, but be careful!

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton.

Daddy kissed his family good-bye and left the train. That was a signal for two-year-old Wallace to set up a yell. Instantly his ten-year-old brother laid himself out to amuse the baby. He and his mother spent the day trying to keep little brother quiet.

Wallace was two all right. He had a whole mouthful of teeth. And as he dashed up and down the aisle he could steady himself on the speeding car better than a grown person.

People got tired after a while trying to divert him so his tired mother and patient brother could have a rest.

Too Much Attention.

His mother tried to make him take a nap. No sir! He would not sleep. Choo-choo trains are too exciting. No one can expect a baby to sleep with the world roaring under him and around him.

But I think he might have slept but for two things.

His mother evidently had expected a circus so she had come prepared with food.

About every half hour he was given a bottle of milk or a bottle of something brown. He was a year past bottle age but there were enough bottles to stock a store.

In between times he was fed either with crackers or sandwiches. When Wally wasn't drinking he was eating and when he wasn't doing either he was usually screaming.

Then there was the matter of attention. He knew they expected him to be naughty. He loved to be coaxed and nursed and fed and run after. That grand brother of his gave up every second of the long journey trying to help his mother out. I have seldom seen anything like it in a boy of his age.

Travelling With Babies. These two things, too much food and too much attention, were responsible for the baby's condition, which by three o'clock was pitiful.

I was sorry for the whole family, the tired mother especially. She was trying to keep the baby quiet I suppose, on account of the other passengers. But it didn't do any good anyway.

It is terribly hard to travel with children of that age. It is easy to give advice but only a mother knows how hard it is to follow it. One thing that is important is to understand rather than overfeed a little child on a train. The more excited and tired a baby is the less work his stomach can do.

Another is to treat a trip as a rather matter of fact affair, and not to let him see that you expect him to carry on. A baby usually reflects his mother's nerves.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart.

Hurried, last-minute shopping never pays when it comes to buying shoes.

Don't select your first autumn dress, hat, gloves and bag in an orderly manner and then dash frantically into the nearest shoe shop to get your shoes. Naturally, you want your shoes to look nice and flatter your feet. But don't sacrifice beauty for comfort. Makers of fine shoes know that a good shoe can be handsome and comfortable at the same time.

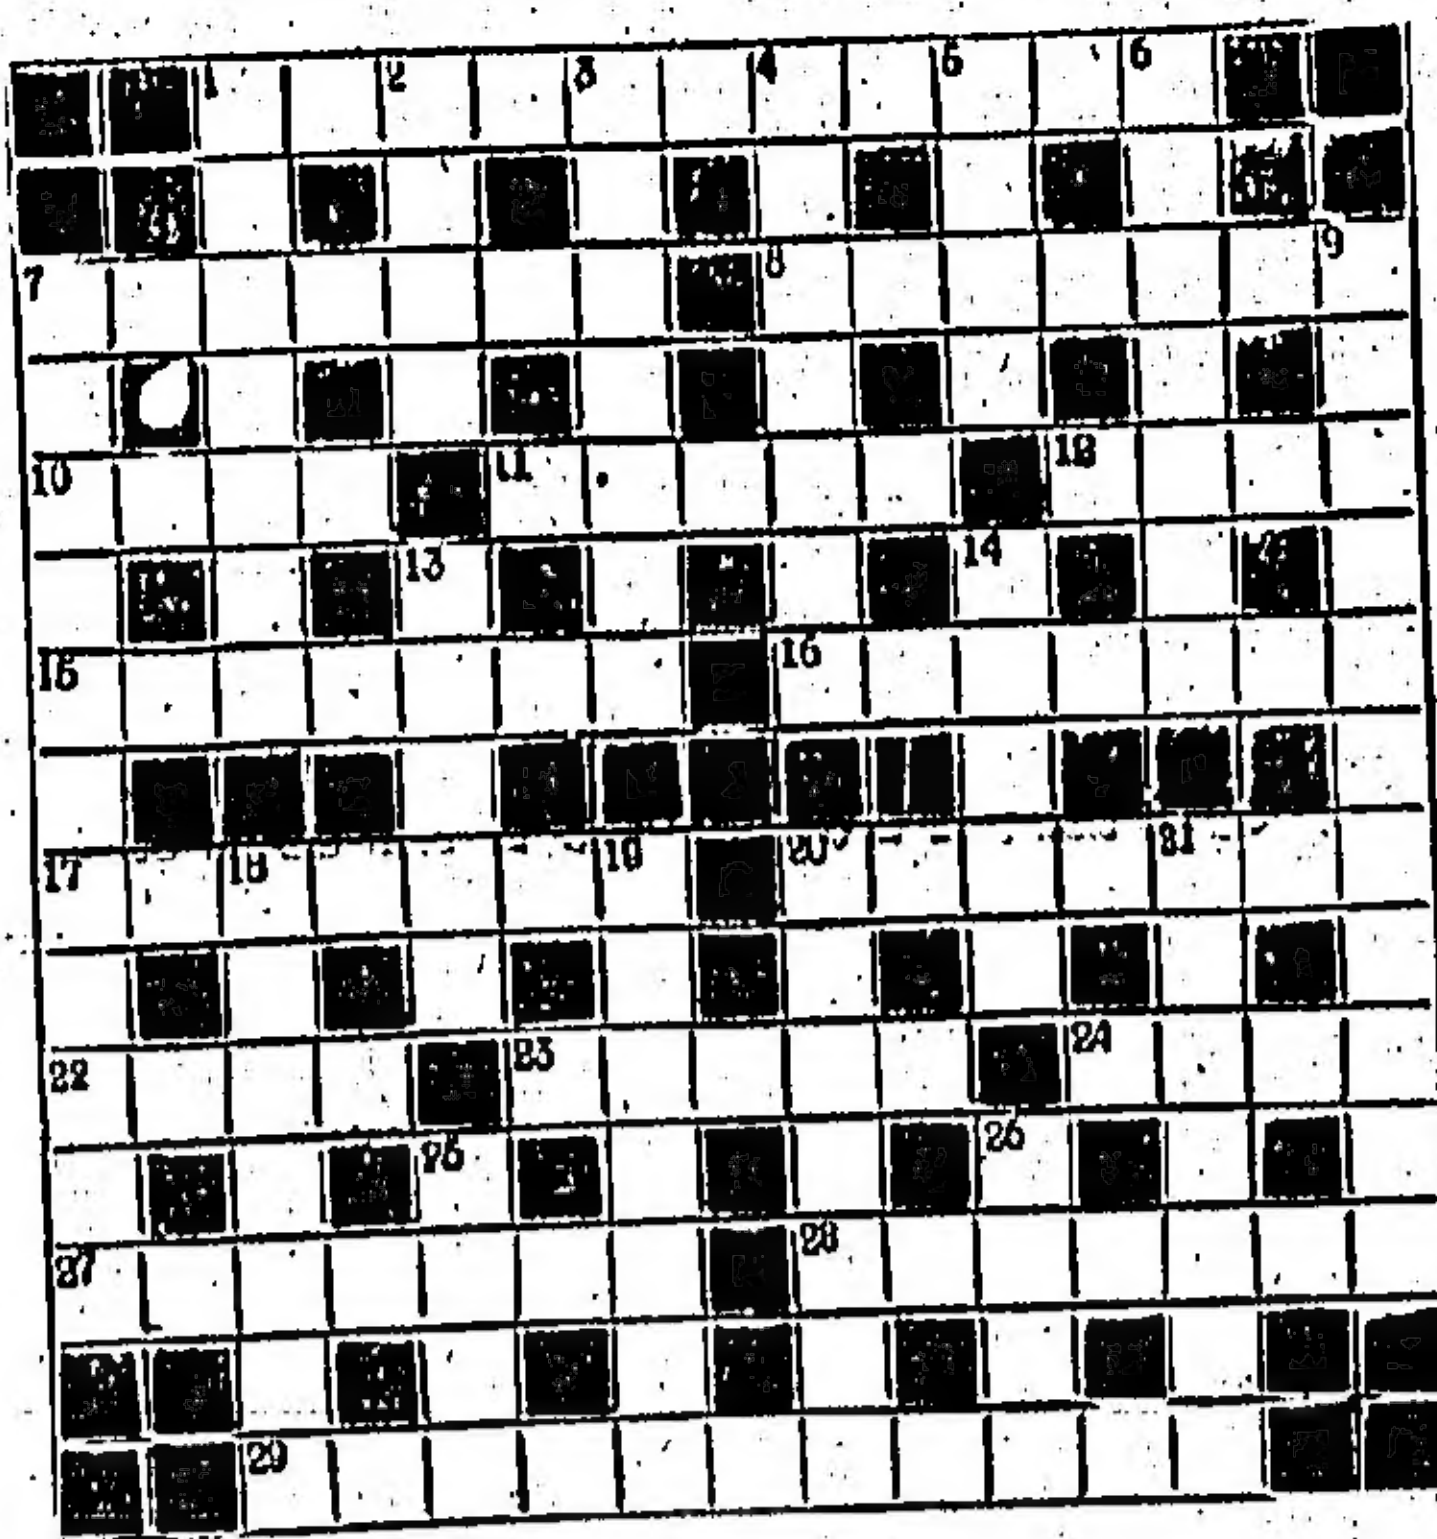

Consideration of your arches is all-important, for the height of the heel and shape of the shoe depends on it.

Odd as it may sound, there are some women who have arches which are not comfortable in heels that are flat. So, if your feet ache, don't assume that it is caused by the high heels you are wearing. Consult a foot specialist. It's possible that the arches in the shoes are all wrong.

As a rule, you're likely to be more comfortable and walk more gracefully in medium-height walking heels.

See that your new shoes are long enough. It's better to get a whole size larger than to have your toes covered with corns before fall is well under way.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XLIV

Eve awakened next morning to an unaccustomed sound. Her mother was beating something in a bowl. Sleepily Eve roused herself. Sleepily she began to play the guessing game that she and Esther had played when they heard that familiar sound on mornings long ago. The game was to guess what particular treat was in store for them and the winner always received the first serving of waffles or muffins or whatever it was their mother had prepared.

"Waffles," Eve guessed, because her mother knew how much she liked them. Then, as a faint fragrance of bacon and coffee came to her, she jumped out of bed, awakened herself thoroughly with a hasty shower and dressed quickly for the office. Her mother, she remembered, thought it slowly to appear at the breakfast table in pajamas or negligee.

Eve left a little later with the understanding that her mother was to meet her at noon at a fashionable tea room. After a leisurely luncheon they went to the art museum. When Kate Bayless protested at Eve's devoting so much time to her entertainment her daughter explained, "I had to go to the museum some time this week to take notes for my column so I asked Mr. Barnes if I could do it to-day. Usually I go in the evening, though there's no real reason why I should. It's office work and I'm within my rights to do it in office hours."

"Why or course, if that's it," her mother agreed. "Now you just attend to your notes and I'll take care of myself. I've always wanted to take my time at a place like this instead of hurrying through and not getting more than a glimpse of anything. When I've seen enough for one time I'll do a little shopping. There are some things Esther wanted me to get for the baby."

Eve took her mother to dinner that evening at a hotel where an orchestra that Kate had heard over the radio was playing. Here the patrons were permitted to select a part of the musical programme and Eve, unknown to her mother, sent a note to the leader of the orchestra, asking for two of her mother's favourite songs. After dinner they went to the early showing of a movie and returned home, weary and ready for bed.

Tuesday evening Eve took her mother to see a play and Ray in their charming home and Wednesday Mrs. Penney entertained them at dinner. Arlene and Sam also were invited.

"You have nice friends, Eve," Kate Bayless said after the visit to Mrs. Penney's apartment. She had picked up her crochet work—a little cap she was making for Esther's baby—and settled herself in a chair by the fire. "And they have nice homes—real homes. Daughter, when are you going to quit working for other people and settle down to marriage in earnest?"

"I—Dick and I have a nice home, too, Mama." "Just now Dick has exactly no home at all. Nor you, either. I can't look on and see you making a mess of your life, dear child, without warning you how it is likely to end."

"I didn't say much at first about your working after you were married. I thought that by this time you'd probably have a baby and would be glad to stay at home and keep house and let your husband earn the money. Then, when Dick got this new job I was so glad. I thought, of course, that you'd go with him. How long will his work keep him away, Eve?"

"A year, he thinks. Possibly longer." Eve's voice was very low. "And after that? What if his next job takes him somewhere else instead of bringing him here?"

again?"

"I—I don't know, Mother." "Child, you're not happy living this way. You don't look happy. And you never even speak of your husband unless I bring up the subject. Why don't you give up your work at Bixby's and go to him, Eve? Don't you want to go?"

For answer Eve rose, flung herself into her mother's arms and sobbed against her comforting shoulder. Kate patted her, murmuring endearments, and encouraged her to relieve her unhappiness in tears. Presently when Eve had gained some control over her voice she confessed, "Oh, I want him so dreadfully, Mother, but I'm not sure he wants me!"

And she told her mother of the estrangement that had arisen, "I guess I'm partly to blame for all this," Kate Bayless went on when Eve had dried her eyes and was sitting on a low stool at her mother's feet.

"You? Why how could you be to blame? You were hundreds of miles away!"

"Well, I always tried to save you from even the little hardships when you were a child. I thought there would be time enough for you to face such things when you were older. What I overlooked was to make you see that when you left home and went out into the business world and into a home of your own you'd have to begin to do some of the hard things yourself and sacrifice your own wishes and comfort sometimes for others. I thought you'd see it yourself, Eve. I didn't realize that you needed to be told."

"But I do hard things—loads of them!" Eve insisted. "All the deadly, routine things that Barnes hates to do he gives to me. If you'd ever see how hard I work at Bixby's, Mama, you wouldn't say such a thing!"

"Well, maybe you do—at Bixby's where it doesn't really matter. But at home, Eve? Did you do any of the hard things at home or did you put them all on Dick? You admit that he did nearly all the cooking. Was that fair? Was that going fifty-fifty as you're so fond of putting it?"

"Why shouldn't he do it, when he always got home first in the evening?"

"Well, what about breakfast?" "Dick had to get to work earlier than I did. Why should he expect me to get up a half hour earlier just to make him some coffee and toast and boil eggs when he could do it as easily himself?"

"Perhaps he could do it as easily. But do you suppose that was the kind of home he looked forward to when he married you? No, Eve, if you are determined to keep an outside job after you married, least you could do was to take half the responsibility at home, too.

"Of course your husband loves you and wants you to go to Pine Forest or any other place his work takes him. He wants you to make a home for the two of you. If he doesn't tell you so anymore, maybe it's pride. Or maybe you've hurt his feelings. Or a woman gets crabby, Eve, when she works outside her home after she's married. The two jobs are too much for her strength and nerves. You ought to be building up reserve strength that you might need in case of sickness. Instead you're getting thinner and more nervous every day."

"Now, to-morrow night we won't go to a show or anywhere. I'll have a good hot supper ready the minute you get home. You'll like that and you'll realize how Dick would like that, too, and after supper you'll sit down and write him a nice long letter and tell him that you're giving up your work at Bixby's."

Eve did not promise, nor did she write the letter. The next evening she came home as swiftly as a taxi could bring her with the news that Earle Barnes was to leave Bixby's June first to become general manager of a much larger department store in Chicago and that Mr. Bixby had asked her to take his place when he was gone. (To be Continued.)

FANG CHEN-WU AGREES TO STOP FIGHTING

Peking, October 10. Following the example set by the Government, General Fang Chen-wu has ordered his troops to cease operations, thus giving full effect to the armistice.—Reuter.

Rebels Active. Peking, Oct. 10. Renewed activity amongst the rebels is reported in an official communique issued after a sharp engagement yesterday evening at Kaoliang. The rebels attacked the main Government position at Mafang this morning; but were repulsed.

Pence overtures have broken down owing to the obvious lack of sincerity on the part of the rebel leaders.

Troops under General Tang Yulin, who have thrown in their lot with General Fang Chen-wu, are reported as having arrived at Hulaho, south of the Great Wall, and their early fusion with General Fang's forces is anticipated.

The censorship at Peking has been most strict and three morning newspapers have been suspended for a week for publishing unauthorized military news.—Reuter.

WAR DEBT TALKS.

STABILISATION AGAIN TO FOREFRONT

Washington, Oct. 10. Stabilisation appears once again to be to the forefront of the Anglo-American War Debt negotiations, which opened in earnest to-day.

The Journal of Commerce states that it is reported that the U.S. dollar and the British pound may be stabilised at two-thirds their former gold parity.

The New York Times states that it has been definitely established that a ten per cent. lump sum is unacceptable to America as settlement of War Debts. A further token payment from Britain on December 15 is suggested if negotiations are not concluded by that time.

In view of president Roosevelt's hitherto sphinx-like attitude of a sympathetic listener, the burden of negotiations has been thrown upon the British representatives, the newspaper adds.—Reuter.

BEATEN BY NAZIS

AMERICAN CITIZEN LODGES PROTEST

Berlin, Oct. 10. An American citizen, an official in the Woolworth Company here, whose name is Wells, protested through the American Consul to-day against maltreatment by a crowd of Nazis because he failed to salute the Nazi flag.

Wells, whose face was badly battered, asserts that he was walking with his wife when the incident occurred. He summoned the police, but they refused to intervene.

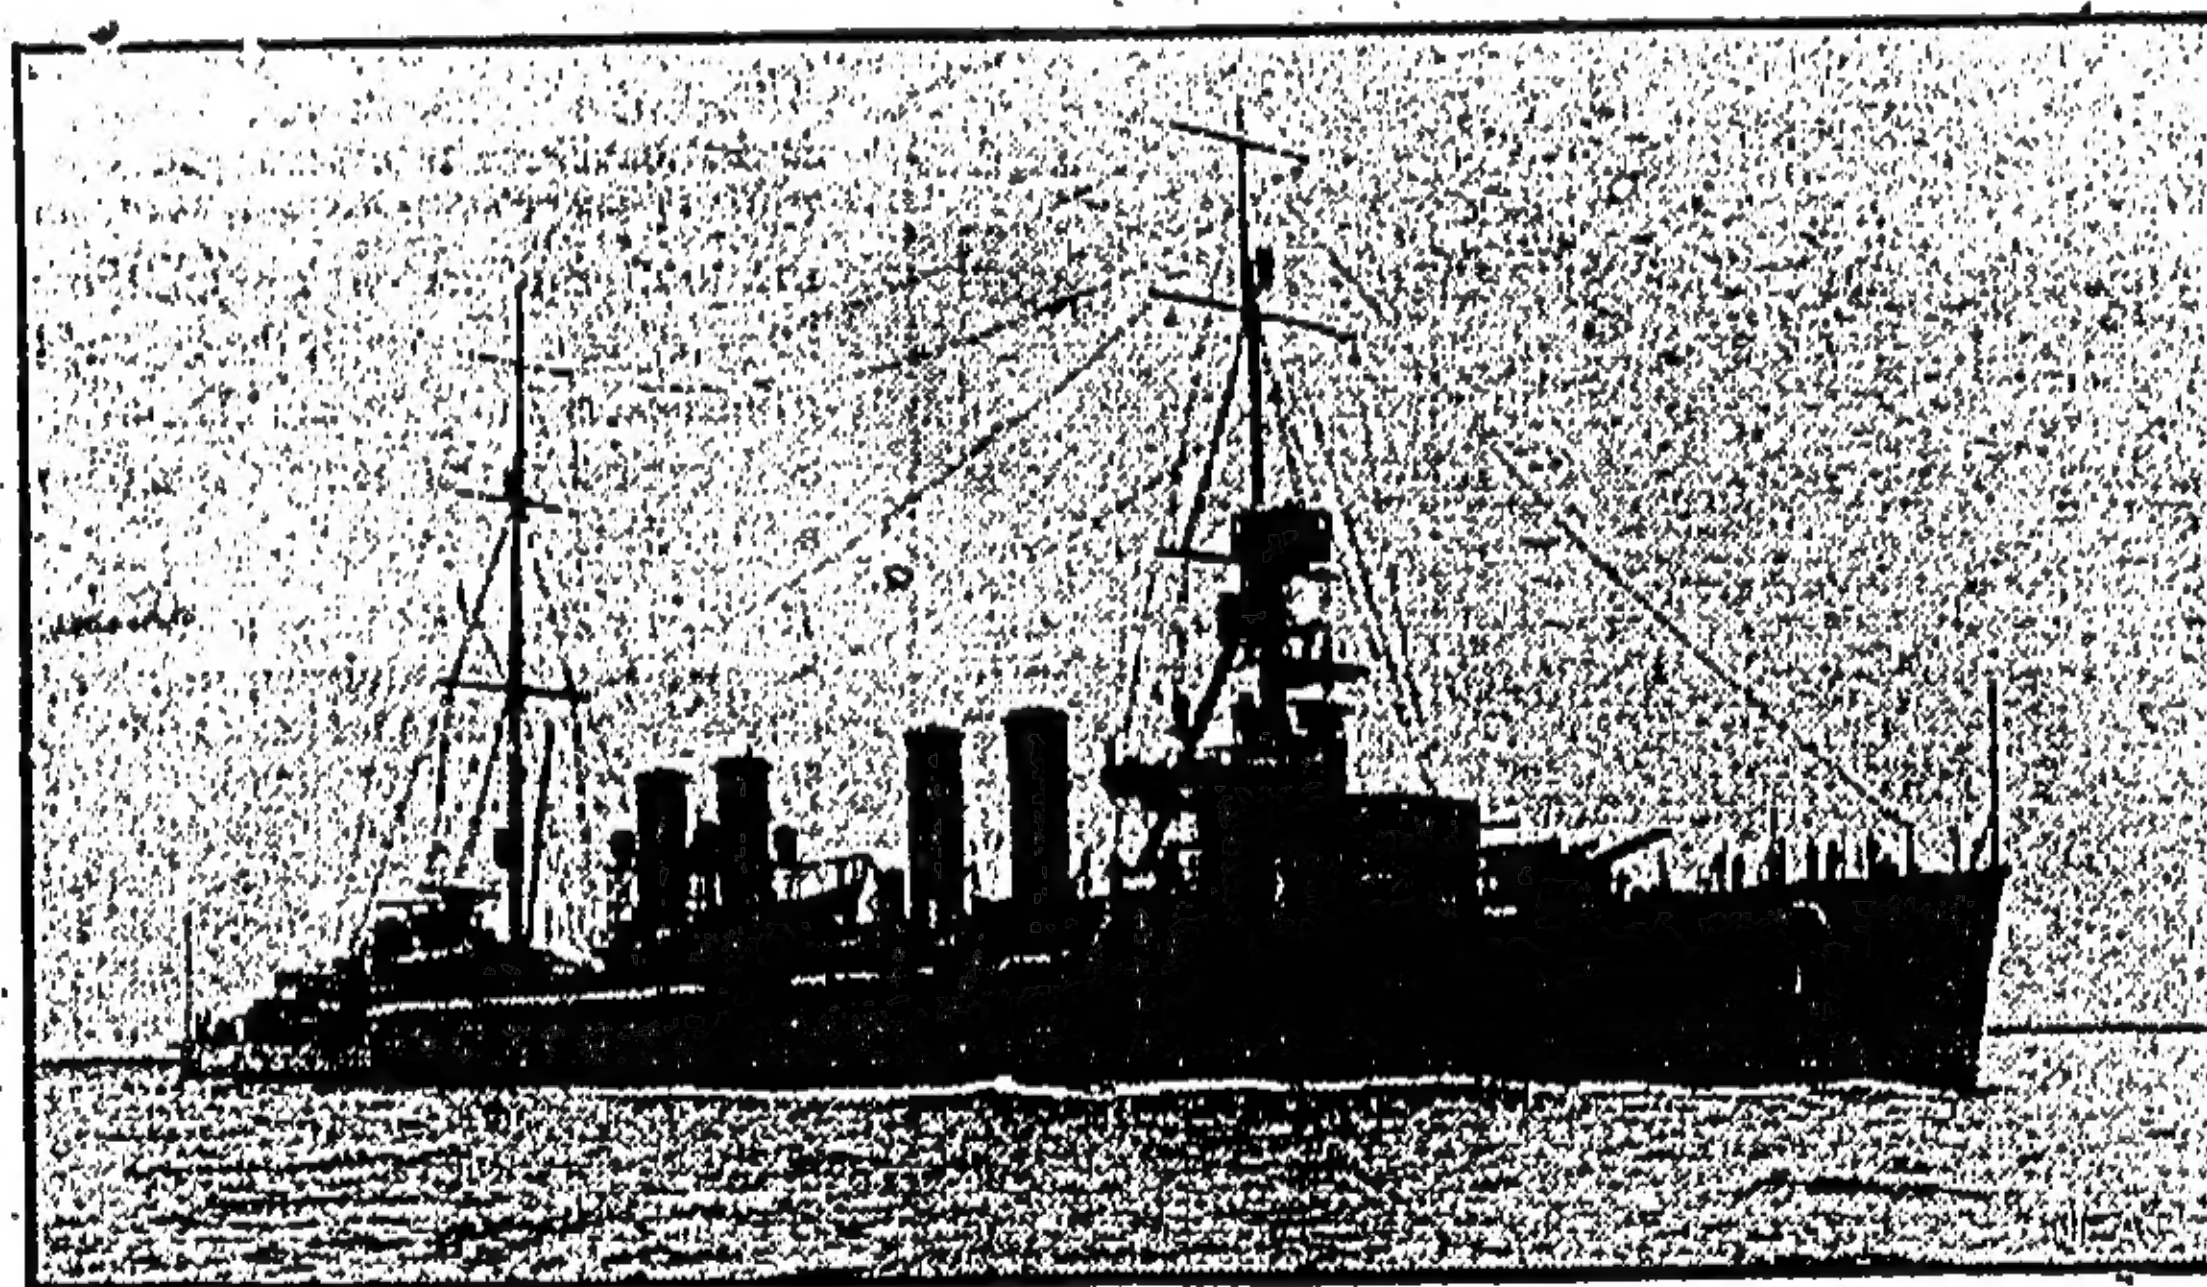

A German-Jew, but a naturalised South African, Sigmund Koenig, recently got prompt redress following a violent Nazi assault when the authorities learned he was a British subject. An apology was made, his medical expenses refunded and a promise was given to punish the malefactors.—Reuter.

In command of the U.S. Navy special service squadron which was rushed to Cuba to protect American lives and property when the new revolt flared on the island is Rear Admiral C. S. Freeman, shown above. Also shown is the U.S.S. Richmond, a light cruiser carrying a complement of 425 enlisted men and 65 marines, on which Admiral Freeman makes his headquarters.

This local library was blown right out of the water by the force of the terrific hurricane that struck the Florida east coast and did extensive damage in the central part of the state. The scene is on the shore of Lake Worth at West Palm Beach.

stands one of the finest engines ever made!

The most vital part of any automobile is its engine. And when you buy a CONTINENTAL Flyer, you are buying the product of an engine-specialist of 30 years' standing—with the experience gained from building the famous Red Seal engines guaranteeing the mechanical excellence of your car.

The Flyer will be a revelation to you. Never have you hoped for such beauty, comfort and expensive features at so modest a price. Here are just a few quick facts: time-proved 6-cyl. in-line Red Seal engine, mounted at 3 points in live rubber; double cantilever rear springs; 25% less unsprung weight; four-wheel steel-draulic brakes; four hydraulic shock absorbers; safety all-steel bodies and safety glass windshield; rich upholstery and fittings; 20 to 25 miles to the gallon—and WINGED POWER, Continental's exclusive sensation of smoothness!

See the Flyer. Ride in it. Only then can you realize how vastly superior it is to cars of comparable price.

Bata
Gloucester Building.

Hongkong, October 9, 1933.

Dear Madam,
Dear Sir,

We cordially invite you to pay a visit to our store at Gloucester Building to inspect our wide variety of shoes for ladies and gentlemen, also for children. You will be under no obligation to buy.

We have a large selection of shoes of the finest workmanship and in all fittings. In this assortment you will find comfort, fit, style and wearing quality. Imported shoes are still expensive in this Colony, but it is our policy to give our customers good imported shoes at the lowest possible prices.

The Bata Shoe Company is one of the largest in the world and has the most complete chain-store system in Europe, also in all important cities in the world.

We own more than 3,000 stores. The increasing demand for Bata shoes from a satisfied public constantly demands more stores even in times such as the present.

Our factories are in all European countries. This year we started a factory in England. Prices of raw materials are coming down. By virtue of our huge turnover we are able to take advantage of this fact by reducing considerably the prices of Bata shoes.

Our principle is—BETTER SHOES AT LESS COST. Although we have reduced prices, our shoes are of the same very high quality as before. We guarantee every pair. Our motto is PERFECT FOOTWEAR.

In our show-windows there are displayed 260 pairs of shoes on which there has been a reduction of from 20 to 30%.

You now have the opportunity to buy the same shoes at a little more than half the former price.

Always at your service, we remain,

Yours faithfully,

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1933.

C.E.R. CRISIS

War clouds are thickening fast in the Far East and little attempt is now being made to conceal international perturbation. For if the storm bursts, there is no saying to what degree it may extend and, who may become involved. To-day, for the first time, the danger looks real. The fuss being made by Japan over the publication of the Hishikari documents is ominous in itself. Threats of sterner action against the Soviet can hardly be justified by the facts, unless cause for action is being sought. "Intense indignation" at their publication in Japan looks a trifle thin when the rigidity of the censorship is borne in mind. Had there been any desire to prevent the revelations from appearing in the Japanese press, nothing could have been easier.
Ample warning had been given of the Soviet's intention to publish the documents. If they were suspected to be spurious, there was opportunity for early perusal and denial of authenticity. But Japan waits, permits the documents to be printed throughout the country, and then threatens the severance of diplomatic relations, and sterner action. What is to come next? How far is Japan prepared to go? These are vital questions. The answers may mean peace or war. The most likely interpretation of yesterday's developments is that a trial of strength, in some form, is about to take place. If the Soviet climbs down on this issue, she may as well surrender all along the line because Japanese pressure will be unceasing. There seems little room for a halfway house. And the Soviet's prestige demands that she should not climb down. There is that the danger lies. The relative positions of the parties to the dispute have changed markedly in the last few months.
The Soviet six months ago had her anxieties in the West as well as in the East. M. Litvinoff's activities in London have removed all peril on the Western frontier and Moscow is able to turn to the East with greater confidence. The seriousness of the outlook in these circumstances cannot be ignored. It was always too much to expect the constant bickering and friction over the Chinese Eastern Railway to continue indefinitely.
Russia was bound to make a stand and has chosen to make it now. Japan's readiness to make a case looks alarmingly like the first stage of a grave crisis.

NOTES OF THE DAY

DISARMAMENT

Mr. Baldwin's plain forceful speech at Birmingham makes it the more surprising that British commentators on the disarmament crisis should still stress the importance of the British draft convention. No doubt it will be given a second reading, the ordinary rules of procedure will be followed, but it is blind deception to suggest that it really matters at this stage. The convention is technical; the trouble is political.
A fundamental difference has arisen between the declared policies of France and Germany. The issue is clear for all to see. One or other must give way or there can be no convention. Until their rival viewpoints have been adjusted, all discussion of any convention is sheer waste of time.

THE FIRST HURDLE

Mr. Henderson has set out the principal points of difficulty in admirably concise fashion. His analysis places the problems in an order, which suggests that the clash will come at the first hurdle, concerning the duration of the first stage mentioned in the convention. France places it at four years, and during that period will not reduce her forces by a man or her armaments by a gun. International supervision must be agreed upon, and in such a way that guarantees can be vouchsafed that Germany is not re-arming secretly. Herr Hitler's policy is equally rigid. He claims that Germany has no desire to re-arm but insists on the disarmament of other nations. He demands full recognition of the fundamental principle of equality, which means nothing less than that he claims the right to re-arm if France does not come down to Germany's level. Germany's right to equality is not seriously challenged, but it must be effected by a scaling down of other armaments—not by re-armament of Germany. Here it is that the peril lies.

UNITY

All is not over and finished yet, however, unpleasant as are the prospects. The Bureau has met and Herr Nadelin has urged that the Conference should get down to an examination of the British draft convention. The parties mean business and there should be quick decisions. The one ground for hope lies in the fact that none of the leading participants will welcome being saddled with the responsibility for causing a collapse. It always remains possible, therefore, that the outlook will alter. The deadlock may be less complete than it looks. The strength of the combination in the spirit of faith and peace and the impression that that unity makes upon Germany will be the deciding factor, in which connexion the good contacts between France and Italy may be regarded as highly favourable. The United States and Britain are already solidly behind France on this issue.
And Germany could hardly expect things to be otherwise when she teaches the glorification of war for its own sake in Nazi-doctrinal schools.

BRITISH TRADE

A further reduction in September of 74,000 in the number of unemployed in Britain is proof, if proof were needed, that the undeniable expansion of industry in Britain continues, and at a heartening pace. Seasonal changes have been in the strength of the general upward movement. There are 700,000 to 800,000 more people at work than there were a year ago;
and there are few trades that have not shared in the increase. We gather that the buoyancy of London is an important factor and that North is recovering much more slowly. But there is hope for it in the fact that the world cannot go on much longer without new steel while a crowd of 18,000 at a Cardiff football match is unofficial evidence of the greatly improved situation in South Wales.

PROBLEM OF PUBLIC WORKS-II. DANGER OF SPENDING SCHEMES

By SIR ERNEST BENN

The justification of a programme of expenditure on public works, in order to relieve unemployment, was defended yesterday by Sir Arthur Salter. In the following article Sir Ernest Benn replies to the arguments put forward by Sir Arthur.

If brains and courage are adequate substitutes for sense and experience, then Sir Arthur Salter is a force to be reckoned with. It is a truism to say that the poorer the case, the more the need for first-class brains to support it, but the pity is that poor cases seem to have a peculiar fascination for great brains, a circumstance for which the world in recent times has paid a heavy price, as it has given us that curious affliction known as the intelligentsia.

The skill of Sir Arthur's plea for more public works lies not so much in the points he makes as in the careful avoidance of the really vital parts of the argument. He is concerned to promote public works financed by borrowed money and succeeds, except for one little sentence, in keeping the reader's mind absolutely clear of the notion that borrowing involves the reverse operation of paying. Sir Arthur and his associates, if they do not believe that we can go on borrowing for ever, certainly display no sign of anxiety about the £10,000, 000,000 of existing public debt.
Some of these people know quite well that if the debt can be made large enough, it will have to be repudiated, and being desirous to overthrow "the system" they welcome Sir Arthur Salter and his spending schemes as means to that end.

Sir Arthur has the courage to make reference to the "regular" amortisation of old debts. He would do better to call attention to the farcical inadequacy of such sinking funds as exist, and to the lack of safeguards against the misuse of them by local authorities.
Since the war these local governments, which are now urged to borrow, have, in fact, raised loans equal to three times the total of the pre-war National Debt, and the sinking funds attached to these huge liabilities amount at present to no more than five per cent. of the whole. The ratepayers are in many cases liable to the extent of £60 per head of the population
($300 per family), and yet Sir
Arthur would have them owe more.
Much of this money has been raised on the loose modern sixty-year basis, a thoroughly immoral proceeding, for the roads and other "wasting assets" on which it has been spent will be worn out and valueless long before the debts have been paid.

Little wonder, therefore, that Sir Arthur does not think it worth while to trouble readers with his views on the ethics of borrowing and paying. His reference to the lower rates of interest, and the saving to the Government and to the local authorities by reason of the numerous conversion operations, comes painfully near to the dishonest. Without referring to the records, I hazard the statement that Sir Arthur Salter used his powerful influence to persuade us to make "conversion" a success on the grounds that the process would lead to lower taxation and lower rates. No recent political chieftainry is more disgraceful than the way in which that prospect, indeed pledge, has been ignored. When, a year ago, our splendid middle class supported with enthusiasm the reduction of their income by some fifty millions, they did not conceive it as possible that the Government, egged on by the Arthur Salters, would proceed to leave the burden of rates and taxes untouched and then suggest the piling up of more liabilities.

Three-quarters of the space alloted so generously to Sir Arthur Salter is occupied with a catalogue of the things he does not desire to do, coupled with an astounding confession of opportunism. He forsakes the high ground of Discovery and descends to mere timoreering, protesting that his ambition is the essence of modesty and his suggestions only appropriate in present circumstances. He suggests that if and when trade revives public expenditure will be reduced; his colleagues in the Civil Service will then come forward, and in the pure spirit of public service, insist upon the shutting down of work undertaken for "temporary reasons" which have then gone. To make the point the clearer, he remarks that an expansion of public expenditure in 1928 "was not the appropriate remedy." I can only regret that Sir Arthur does not appear to have expressed that view in 1928, when his opinion might have been very helpful to us.

I am frankly puzzled by this descent to self-confessed opportunism on the part of the greatest of all the planners, one who professes really to know how to arrange the perfect world. I do not remember any reference to "present circumstances," when Sir Arthur, as financial autocrat at Geneva, distributed League of Nations loans all over Europe.
My belief is that every one of these disastrous transactions was recommended to its investor-victims on the ground that it would solve some problem in a permanent way. Whether, however, Sir Arthur, when dealing with Austria, Greece, Hungary, and many other bankrupt States, was his own self—a permanent planner—or merely an apologetic opportunist does not matter, the unhappy fact remains that in all these cases his advice was bad and its results disastrous.

I have referred to Sir Arthur's courage, some may prefer to call it lack of discretion, arising perhaps from a desire to appear thoroughly up-to-date. But so great an authority ought really to possess the patience necessary to wait for facts to be facts before using them in argument. He has,
I imagine, never ceased to regret a sentence in "Recovery" in which he commended "good constructive loans like those arranged by the League, or a man of such creative vision as Mr. Ivar Krauger." This unhappy lapse should make him more careful of adopting danger-

The Very Idea!

A FAIRY TALESKI

By Edward Kelly, Dohio

WHAT with Rasputin and the Empress at the Queen's, and the Soviet and Manchukuo at each others throats we think we can tell a fairy tale, too. Something that will bring a sob to your throat, and make strong men want to go out for a glass of H.K. Beer.

It was the time of the dark days in Russia. Lydia Cocatin, opium-cleaner to the town of Novgorod, flung her ikon round her thin shoulders and gilded into the night. It was Ivan's name-day—Ivan Orrikkoff, office-boy to the town commissar of the dreaded vodka, or secret police. She must get him a treetski, or feast. She would go to the heaps of muck, or rubbish.

Her fingers swiftly sifted the muck, and soon closed on a sardinetin, or fish-container. In it were several versts of oil, and one sardine, or little fish. She hurried homeward, furtively concealing it beneath her ikon, for to withhold food from the communal stock was a counter-revolutionary act, if not actually sabotage.

She bolted the door behind her,
and laid the sardinetin under the samovar. A shot rang out. She glided to the door, but no sound broke the stillness save the cry of a distant moujik. But why was Ivan so late? He had not returned from his toil, three weary roubles away across the stopper. Had he a shot rang out. She glided to the door. A far-off moujik howled. If Ivan had been arrested he would be sent to the dreaded astrakhan-mines... a shot rang out. She glided to the door. A moujik... but a huge figure dragged her out by the hair, upon the capture or stop. A voice hissed.
"You were watched; where are the vitamins hidden?" Lydia, stammering "Where is Ivan?" "Omsk," grunted the commissar, for it was he. "Liar," she cried, "I heard you shoot him in three places!" The commissar straightened his bala-laika, "The concealing of food," said he, "is counter-revolutionary, if not actually sabotage, and unless you give me the sardinetin, Ivan will not return. It is the sardine or your lover!" "He is dead," sobbed Lydia, "take it." She brought out the little fish. The commissar snatched it greedily, and as he strode away swung the bodies of the three droshkis, or musk-rats
he had just shot for his supper.

Suddenly a far-away voice called,
"Lydia, I am here." "Ivan," she breathed.

In the distance a moujik howled.

THE ETERNAL FEMINE

At 15: "I'm a woman."
At 16: "I'm wonderful."
At 20: "How can they resist me?"
At 21: "I don't look a day over
At 25: "I'd pass for 21 easily."
At 35: "I've still got that school-girl complexion."
At 45: "We women don't age so early these days."
At 55: "I'm glad I'm not old like some people."
At 65: "There's plenty worse

At 75: "Another ten years and I'll have to give up jazzing."

TO OUR SON

The world is in a dilemma. We don't know what the heck that means, but there you are—take it or leave it. If the people of the world suffer as much in the next two years as they have suffered in the last two years, then they will have suffered four years in the same fashion, which is ridiculous.
If Shakespeare had been living to-day he would have been about 400 years old; but don't let that worry you, for it just goes to show that when the Darwinian theory is combined with the Einstein theory you have to pay your accounts just the same.
If there is going to be an earthquake in Japan in two years' time, then that is just two years from now. The barest things we have seen this year have been the Nudd Cult and our breakfast, dinner, and tea plates. We have also seen many beautiful things in our life, including one policeman with bare feet.
The rate of exchange is still 1/4%, but we don't know what it is. The Peak is still in the same place, but it won't be if somebody shifts it in the next couple of years—you mark our words, but don't mark them hard, for they're not very strong.
In conclusion we wish to state that we have contracted indigestion from chowing over the present unfinancial problems, and if all the razor-blades in Hongkong were taken outside the harbour and dumped, it would be rather silly, because there would be none left. And so say all of us.

BRILLIANT WOOD ON LAST HEAD

SHANGHAI ALL SQUARE IN LAWN BOWLS INTERPORT

BETTER TEAM WINS AT THE KOWLOON CRICKET CLUB

It was left to Tommy Main to play a true captain's part yesterday, and to win for Shanghai the second match of the lawn bowls interport series.

It was his wood which took out Hongkong's shot on the last head with the scores at 19 all and gave Shanghai two shots and victory.

Nobody will deny Main and his man the worthiness of this success. Better bowlers throughout, it would have been hitting below the belt for the goddess of luck to ally herself with the Hongkong team against such splendid bowling.

And quite a different aspect is that by this win, the ideal position has been created. The third interport will now be given its true setting. Everything depends on it.

TOP FOR HIS FORM.

Main has never bowled better in Hongkong than he did yesterday. Hollands was good, that is in the conventional way, but Main revealed something more. There was a touch of genius in some of his deliveries.

Furthermore he enjoyed better support than Hollands. Richards, for instance, was almost without blemish at No. 3, and Malcolm and Bailey, although not always sure about the pace of the green, generally had a wood to beat Ramsay and Hyde-Lay.

TRAGIC AFTERNOON.

Hyde-Lay had a tragic afternoon. The occasion seemed much too big for him, and although playing on his own green, committed many errors.

Ramsay was not up to his usual standard, and Fred Jones, in his anxiety to avoid being short, was often too weighty.

Consequently Adam Hollands had a fairly stiff burden to shoulder, and it was largely his fighting game which kept the result open until the last head.

There was a thrilling climax. With his second wood, Ramsay laid a dead shot completely covering the "jack." Efforts to "dislodge" it were of no avail until Jones, attempting to make a block, put too much weight on his wood and disturbed a perfect position. With his next wood the Civil Service player regained the shot, but Main, with a superb delivery, took out the jack and rested it near two Shanghai back woods.

"SIXERS" AT H.K.C.C.

BIG HITTING BY R. H. GRIFFITHS

WICKETKEEPER-BOWLER

Norman Mackay, formerly wicketkeeper-batsman for the K.C.C. first team, yesterday developed into a successful bowler, when, playing for the Kowloon Cricket Club second eleven, he took five K.C.C. wickets for 42 runs.

His effort was unavailing. F. A. Dunnett was hit unmercifully, especially by R. H. Griffiths, who in scoring 85, made 17 runs in one over including two hits out of the ground.

The Hongkong Cricket Club won the second holiday fixture by 114 runs, outplaying the visitors from the start.

J. E. Potter (25), H. J. D. Lowe (20) and R. O. F. King (13 not out) were, in addition to Griffiths, the chief contributors to the Hongkong total of 184.

The K.C.C. started promisingly in reply, Mackay and G. Lee scoring 39 for the first wicket. Thereafter Lawson and Mecke had things all their own way and dismissed the side for 70. Lawson took 6 for 13 and Mecke 3 for 6.

Fine All Round Display

The fine all round display of Mr. C. B. R. Sargent made possible the defeat of A. Prata's XI by the Diocesan Boys' School.

The headmaster took 4 wickets for 34 runs, being assisted by Lee (4 for 24) who helped to dismiss Prata's team for 90.

Mr. Sargent then rattled up 30 out of a total of 112. M. Arculli was the most successful bowler, capturing 4 for 36.

AT CRAIGENGOWER TO-DAY.

SHANGHAI BOWLERS' — STIFF TEST.

This afternoon the Shanghai bowlers meet the Craigengower Cricket Club rink, the match starting at 3.30.

The Club is turning out a strong four, and the visitors will have to be at their best to win.

Craigengower will be represented by:

HOLIDAY MAMAK HOCKEY

C.B.A. REGISTER ANOTHER WIN

Although fielding a depleted side, the Central British Association had no difficulty in recording a win of 2-0 against the R.A.M.C. in a Mamak Tournament game at Sookunpoo yesterday.

They were without the services of two of their star men, Polo and Johnson, who were included in the South Wales Borderers side against the Jats.

This meant a reshuffling of the side, and MacNider was brought in at back in place of Polo, Hirst playing at inside-left with Gurevitch on the wing, Kintz being transferred to right-wing.

The game generally was scrappy with the C.B.A. continually attacking. But for the brilliant goal-keeping of Polo and the steady play of Capt. Gore and Lane, the Medical Corps would have gone under by a much larger margin.

The forwards were weak, lacking combination and speed. The C.B.A. forwards on the other hand combined well, although Francis was slow and missed several sitters. Hirst and T. Whitley were the pick, with King doing some useful work on the wing. Of the halves Allen was outstanding. Bickford did some hard hitting at back and broke up a number of attacks. Moss in goal was tested on three occasions only.

It was not until the last five minutes of the first half that the C.B.A. found the net. They had bombarded the Corps goal time and time again, but Polo was safe. Then T. Whitley, taking a pass from Gurevitch, netted from a difficult angle on the right. Early in the second half Hirst increased their lead from a pass by Whitley, and before the end Whitley added his second from a melee in the circle.

The teams were:
C.B.A.—Moss; B. I. Rickford, S. MacNider; F. W. R. Allen, N. Whitley, Halford; J. J. King, T. Whitley, C. C. Francis, W. Hirst and G. Gurevitch.
R.A.M.C.—Polo; Capt. Gore, Lane; Carey, Neale, Tilley; Parry, Whitechurch, Colledge, Carson and King.

PRACHT THWARTS ST. ANDREW'S

Close Win Against German Club

St. Andrew's gained their first points in the Mamak Tournament yesterday when they defeated the German Club by the narrow margin of two goals to nil.

The play generally was quite good, although the Saints were below their usual form. They attacked most of the time but at the interval led by only one goal, scored by E. F. Fincher. Brilliant defending by the backs, Pracht especially, saved the Germans from heavier defeat.

After half-time the Saints' second goal was noted by N. A. E. Mackay. The goal was a doubtful one, it being claimed that it was shot from outside the circle. Muller just missed, reducing the lead during a splendid burst in the second half.

Jats Score Nine.

On the Marina ground yesterday afternoon, the Jats regimental eleven proved too fast for the South Wales Borderers, winning by nine goals to nil, in a friendly hockey match.

The teams consist of the best eight shots by the companies irrespective of rank.

At the conclusion of the shoot the scores are checked and telegraphed to the other interport sides, and, after comparisons have been made, the winner is announced. Last year Shanghai were the victors, though it is thought that Singapore would have carried off the honours if they had not been compelled to fire a man short, their individual average being well over that of the winning team.

The eight chosen to represent the Singapore Volunteers have been in active practice during the past few weeks, this interport shoot being regarded as one of the main competitive events of the year.

FRAYED FEELINGS, FOULS AND FOOTBALL

EXTRAORDINARY MATCH FOR GOVERNOR'S CUP

REST BEAT CHINESE: PLAYER GIVEN MARCHING ORDERS

(By "Veritas").

Frayed tempers, resulting in an abnormal number of fouls as well as an excessive use of the whistle prevented the orderly progress of the Governor's Cup match yesterday on the Club ground, but this could not rob the game of its colourful exchanges and exciting incidents.

The Rest beat the Combined Chinese (in this case the complete Chinese Athletic team) by the odd goal in seven in the first leg of the re-organised competition.

They accomplished this in the face of two missed penalties, an unwarranted display of unrestrained antagonism on the part of the Chinese, and about as much bad loss as any team could experience.

Referee Baldwin was given a most distasteful task. Early on he had to speak severely to one or two of the Chinese for their continual breaches of the fair play rules. Before the first half had concluded he was forced to give marching orders to Wang Sik-ping for an amazing show of red-hot temper, and in the closing stages of the game, he was faced with a hostile demonstration by the Chinese spectators.

PLAYING PITCH INVADDED.

He incensed them by signalling a goal for a shot which he thought Li Kwok-ki had saved from behind the line. Several of them leapt over the enclosure and invaded the playing pitch, volubly protesting. Mr. Baldwin conferred with Linesman Hyde, who was in a good position to see the incident, and as a result amended his decision.

It was in this atmosphere that practically the whole of the game was played. Yet there was a lot of first-rate football, with both forward lines prominent.

Ridley was the man of the match. I have never seen one player possess the ball so much as he. He figured directly in almost every attack on the Chinese goal. Furthermore he was a big success. When in possession he always threatened danger, and he scored a couple of good goals, including the fourth in the dying minutes of the game.

HARRIS HAPPY.

Harris was the other member of the Big Three who upset the Chinese defence. Well, sure too, he demanded respect from the Chinese rear-guard.

Gomes and Hocquard were not successes. The former had no confidence in his shooting powers and thereby lost more than one opportunity, whilst Hocquard, given a real shaking up in the first five minutes displayed little desire to try conclusions with his opposing half and full back, and could make little headway.

The Rest halves did not enjoy any real superiority until late in the game, but throughout they were sound and tenacious. Pardoe covered a lot of ground and remained constructive right through, whilst Perkins was a rare speller. McQuire gave a mediocre display.

Allen and Strange, although individually good, did not cover particularly well and showed signs of being caught napping more than once.

CHINESE FAILING.

If the Chinese had paid a little more attention to the ball and less to the man, they might have made a deeper impression.

The forwards were clever and moved the ball with their customary speed and precision. But they were badly supported. The halves and backs found the task of looking after the Rest attack and attending to the needs of their own vanguard too much for them.

Of the defence only Li Kwok-ki produced the form expected. Time and again he saved rasping drives which were dead on the mark, whilst once he marvellously got to a ball which was dropping under the bar and "tipped it over for a corner."

Lo Hong-cheung, at right back, although vigorous, managed to keep within the confines of fair play, but Wong, even before his dismissal, was very unstable.

Lai Kwok-chui was the pick of the half backs, who were frankly disappointing and far below the form

THE M.C.C. CABLE

Adelaide, Oct. 10.

The texts of the cables, revealed following the receipt of the M.C.C.'s reply, show that the negotiations were most friendly.

The Australian Board of Control agrees that leg theory has been practised for years without any objection yet its continued practice would not be in the interests of the game. They hoped the M.C.C. would concur, and thus enable the teams to take the field in 1934 with that knowledge.

The M.C.C. have replied that they appreciate the friendly tone. The Australian team could certainly take the field with the full knowledge and assurance that cricket would be played in the same spirit as in the past with the single desire to promote the best interests of the game in both countries.—Reuter.

Still Dissatisfied.

London, Oct. 10.

As a result of the publication of the texts of the friendly interchange of cables between the M.C.C. and the Australian Cricket Board, the British press says the "body-line" controversy is over.

Reports from Sydney and Melbourne announce general satisfaction also. But it is understood that Mr. Kelly, and other members of the Australian Board from Victoria, are dissatisfied. Exception is taken to the fact that no definite assurance is given that "body-line" bowling will not be used in future.—Reuter.

TO-DAY'S MAMAK GAME.

The following will represent the Royal Signals against the Mulo Corps for Mamak points on the Marina Grounds this afternoon, bully-off at 4.30:—

Cross; Martin, Whitehead; Austin, Smith, Dilley; Bryco, Neale (Capt.), Cord, Convey Fielding.

The Mulo Corps will be represented by the following:
Bagh Ali, Mohr Din, Jam: Imam Ali, Fazel Dad, Mohamed Khan, Ashig Mohammed; Mir Ahmed, Atta Mohammed, Major, Eve, S/Condr. Denkes, Rahmat, Ullah.

The Chinese got on level terms through Au Kim-keung, and after Elliott had had real bad luck from close in, Au Kim-keung put the Chinese ahead. They held the lead only a short time, Ridley working his way through to beat Li with a glorious drive.

Then came Wong's dismissal. Li had saved a difficult shot and was stretched out on the ground with the ball. Gomes, quite legitimately tried to kick the ball out of his arms, and Wong rushed up and deliberately charged Gomes in the chest sending him spinning.

Hocquard was entrusted with the second penalty, but in his anxiety to clear it clear of Li, missed the upright by inches.

Elliott put the Rest ahead in the second half, as a result of good opportunism, and for a long period the Chinese were defending desperately. Continually they charged down shots which were right on the mark.

Then came a breakaway, and Hocquard, registered the equaliser with the Rest defence spreadeagled. Undismayed the Rest took the ball down and bombarded the goal. A corner was forced and from it Ridley drove the winning shot into the net.

PURE-COOL-CLEAR
as a mountain stream....

Brush your teeth daily with Pebecco, the tooth paste that is most effective against pyorrhea and the germs of decay.

Pebecco contains a salt that stimulates the mouth and gums, kills disease germs, whitening and beautifying the teeth. Pebecco enters into every crevice, it searches out and washes away every particle of food which, if left, might cause serious ill-health.

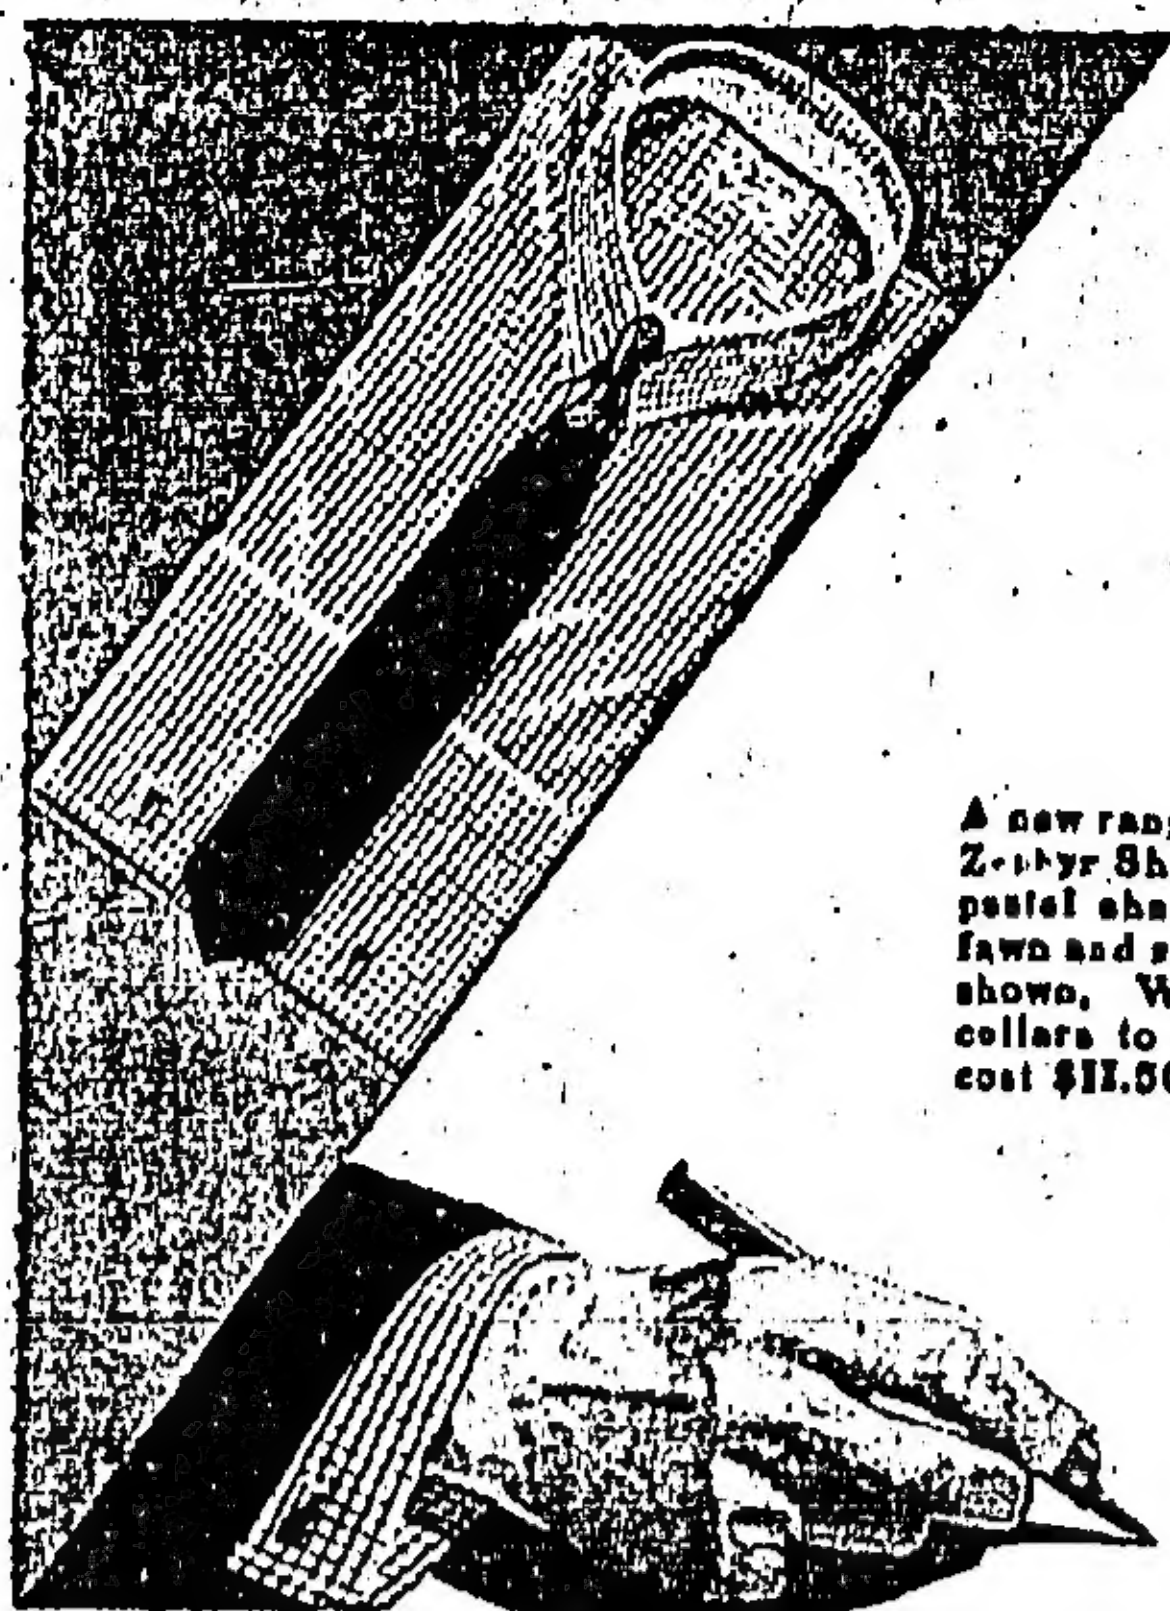

Pebecco effects are lasting, hours after using, your mouth feels fresh, as cool, pure and clear as a mountain stream.

A new range of Summit Zephyr Shirts, in soft pastel shades of blue, fawn and grey, is being shown. With two stiff collars to match, they cost $12.50.

This flat-setting cuff may seem a small matter, but it is precisely this attention to every detail of the tailoring that sets the Summit shirt apart from other shirts. And anyhow it's not such a small matter either. For it makes your cuff far more comfortable when you are writing, and keeps it neat and tidy whatever you are doing.

The patterns are, of course, made only for "Summit" shirts.

PROBLEM OF PUBLIC WORKS—II

ous racketeers, and yet he thinks it well to enforce his present case with an acceptance of the Roosevelt financial crudities.

A word or two must be said about the three specific suggestions for public expenditure out of new loans to which Sir Arthur commits himself. The first is surely the most perfect specimen of the unsophisticated opportunism to which the writer confesses. It happens that we have had a most exceptional drought, and it also happens that we have just spent some 45 million pounds on an electrical grid, the worth of which we have yet to discover. Putting the two ideas together Sir Arthur rushes at the opening for a water-grid involving say 50,000 miles of water main, an utterly preposterous proposal. If this is the best that the world's greatest planner can suggest, he can be safely dismissed as a serious factor in public affairs. With the figures of previous efforts before us, and knowing, as we do, that for every man employed for a year on road-making the taxpayer has been charged with $770, the second suggestion will not find a strong following.

When, as the third part of his programme, Sir Arthur suggests more subsidised house building, he is on still weaker ground. It would be a disaster of the first magnitude if the beginnings of enterprise noticeable in the building trade were to be arrested by the re-entry upon the market of extravagant local authorities. On this matter I would refer Sir Arthur to the Book of Wisdom, edited by George A. Birmingham, which I am so glad to know rests by his bedside. When he reaches the appropriate quotation for December 10 he will read: "He that buildeth his house with other men's money is like one that gathereth himself stones for the tomb of his burial."

PRETTY WEDDING

BRIDE GIVEN AWAY BY COLONIAL SECRETARY.

Members of the Shamson community were well represented in Hongkong yesterday when the Hon. Mr. D. W. Trautman, C.M.G., Colonial Secretary, and Mrs. Trautman, acted as host and hostess at the Bank House, kindly loaned by Mr. L. N. Murphy, Chief Manager of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, and Mrs. Murphy, on occasion of the wedding of Miss Vida Rosamond Harrison, for a number of years the Confidential Assistant and Stenographer at the Colonial Secretariat, and Mr. Charles Bentley Tordre, a member of the Bank Staff, at present stationed at the Shamson Branch.

The service at St. John's Cathedral, which was choral, was taken by the Rev. N. V. Halward, with Mr. F. Mason, A.R.C.O. at the organ. The hymns sung were "Lead Us Heavenly Father," and "O Perfect Love," and by the special request of Mr. Trautman the Prize Song from the maeterlincks (Wagner) was played on the organ.

The bride entered the Cathedral on the arm of the Hon. the Colonial Secretary, by whom she was given away. Her dress, fashioned by Madame Estelle LeMaitre, late of Hongkong and now of Paris, was of French pearl coloured satin, and was beautifully cut to mould the figure in panels flaring slightly from below the hip line, and forming a novel round train in one with the gown. A ruffling of pleated satin finished the entire train edge. Her silk tulle veil, sweeping beyond the hem of the train was held in place by a circlet of seed pearls and orange blossom, and she carried a sheaf of white gladioli with jasmine intertwined.

The bridesmaids dresses, made by Madame D'Oby, formed a pleasant illustration of the velvet and lace vogue, the velvet swathing the figure, whilst the fine lace made a deep transparent yoke with a high neckline at front and dropping to a point at the back, and accentuated sleeves. Miss Anne Parkes, the chief bridesmaid, chose lavender and the Misses Jean and Joyce Fergusson, attendant maids, wore smaller editions, but with puff sleeves and mittens. Pale pink roses, tied with lavender ribbon, added a dainty touch in the posies which they all carried.

Supporting the bridegroom were Messrs. G. W. E. True and R. A. Fawcett, colleagues at the Bank, and Mr. J. H. M. Andrew of the Union Insurance Society of Canton.

The Reception.

The 200 guests who were invited to the reception were received by Mrs. Trautman, who was gowned in an attractive tailored vogue in heavy navy silk patterned in red and beige, with smart swaggar coat of navy introducing very pretty shoulder effect, and all accessories including the new "Jester" hat in red, with poke-shape eye veil of navy. African daisies were her chosen flowers which matched well in colouring her ensemble, which had been carried out by Madame D'Oby.

Speeches were made by Mr. Trautman and Mr. True, and many congratulatory messages were received from absent ones, foremost being those of the bride's parents from Roath Park, Cardiff, and the bridegroom's mother from Ilford, Essex.

Later in the afternoon the happy couple left for the New Territories, and will afterwards take up residence at Canton. The bride's going away dress was of powder blue with coat and hat en suite.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Are you one of those few players who are under the impression that when a player jumps to a game declaration he has signed off?

This is far from being true. If you open with one spade and your partner jumps to four spades, don't for a minute consider that a sign-off. What your partner is doing is to tell you, not only that game is absolutely safe, but in addition that there are possibilities in his hand for a slam.

Pre-emptive bids are practically a thing of the past in contract. It is seldom that a pre-emptive bid will pay. It is true you can build up a hand or two on which you may win with a pre-emptive bid, but you are losing a great deal more on this type of bidding than you will ever gain on the two or three hands per year. Take for example the following hand which came up in a recent tournament.

♠ 6-2	♥ 6-2	♦ 7-6-4-3-2	♣ 6-5-3
♠ Q-8-7-5-3	♥ A	♦ K-10-9-7-4-2	♣ A
♠ A-K-J-10-9	♥ A-Q-10	♦ K-Q-8-5	♣ J
♠ A	♥ K-J-9-8-7-5-3	♦ J-10-9	♣ A

The Bidding

South, the dealer, opened the contracting with one heart. Personally, the writer does not favour an opening bid with this type of hand.

West doubled. This is a negative double and as he has doubled hearts, he tells his partner that he would like him to show a four card spade suit. If he holds it. However, if spades is not East's suit, then on the next round West must be prepared to overcall with his own suit.

For example, in this case, if West did not have a spade and held only clubs, before he made the negative double he would have to consider that partner might respond with two diamonds which would then force him to bid three clubs; therefore, if he is not prepared to play the hand at three clubs, he should not make a negative double.

After the negative double North passed and East bid four spades. This is not a pre-emptive bid—it is definitely a slam try. The negative double has told him that West is undoubtedly prepared to play it at spades and his bid of four spades says, "Partner if you are prepared to play this hand at spades and have any reserve strength, we have a slam."

West should not hesitate in going to six spades. He should not bid only five because then East will pass—he must go all the way and bid six.

Six spades, of course, is a lay down.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Madge Evans was photographed—but even the cameraman did not see her!

"Invisible light" worked a unique marvel in the making of "The Nuisance." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's vivid legal-racket drama coming tomorrow to the Queen's Theatre. For the actress was photographed by the light of an X-ray machine—to the eye being in perfect darkness, while the cameras "ground" on the uncanny sequence.

The sequence called for the X-ray's use in a medical examination, and when it was found that the invisible rays of the machine register on photographic film, the experiment was tried. This is probably the first time a picture filmed by X-rays has figured in a screen play.

"The Nuisance" depicts Leo Tracy as an ambulance-chasing shyster lawyer, who wins lawsuits against the street car company until they send a forensic detective to frame him, and he promptly marries her. The modus operandi of faked X-ray plates, false claims for injuries and other tricks of the ambulance chasers are exposed in a story of thrills, romance and hilarious comedy.

Jack Conway directed the new picture, with an elaborate cast that includes Miss Evans as heroine, Frank Morgan, Charles Butterworth, John Miljan, Virginia Cherrill, David Landau, Greta Meyer, Herman Bing, Samuel Hinds and Syd Saylor. It is Tracy's first picture since he played the debonair foreign correspondent in "Clear All Wires."

FAREWELL KISSES.

AUSTRALIAN-BORN M.P.
VISITING HOMELAND

London, Oct. 10.
Kisses from an admiring woman constituent completed the farewell given to the Australian-born member of Parliament, Capt. W. P. C. Greene, who sits for Worcester, when he left Worcester to-day in a specially chartered triple-engined cruiser monoplane on a 25,000 mile flight to Australia and back. The flight is said to be the longest by a privately chartered plane over to be undertaken. The monoplane will be piloted by Mr. Lynch-Blosse.—Router.

A BOY'S ESSAY ON "SOAP".

"Soap is a kind of stuff made in cakes which you can't eat. It smells good and tastes awful. Soap always tastes worse when you get it in your eye. Father says Eskimoes don't never use soap. I wish I was an Eskimoose."

A very creditable effort, breathing the spirit of revolt against boyhood's arch-enemy, soap, list soap, like other things unpleasant to the juvenile mind, has to be put up with. There were other things, far more unpleasant than soap, which earlier generations of children had to bear; things like castor oil, scum, cascara, salts, administered by stern and implacable hands.

Children now-a-days must be thankful for Baby's Own Tablets, the pleasant-tasting health-regulator which has so completely ousted the old-fashioned crude griping purgatives that were so nauseating and so severe in their effects. Baby's Own Tablets fulfill every need for the normal baby or child up to about six, when the internal organs are not functioning satisfactorily. Quickly, yet in a delightfully gentle and soothing manner, they dispel worms, allay fever, colds and croup. They have proved remarkably successful in easing teething-pains, although they contain absolutely no narcotic or opiate drugs. All parents should keep Baby's Own Tablets, the children's health safeguard, handy.

SOVIET BREAKS OFF C.E.R. NEGOTIATIONS

Alleged to be Trying to "Jockey Japan into War"

President Moesicki of Poland, who was married yesterday.

PRESIDENTIAL ROMANCE

DR. MOSZICKI WEDS SECRETARY

Warsaw, Oct. 10.
The President of Poland has discovered romance after 65 years.

He was married to-day to his secretary, Maria Dobrzanska, who earlier this year was divorced from her husband, Captain Nagorna, by special Papal dispensation.

Large crowds turned out to see the wedding which was attended by the Prime Minister, M. Alexander Prystor, while Cardinal Kokowsky blessed the union.
Dr. Ignatius Moszicki, who will be 66 years of age in December and who has never married before, has been President of Poland since 1926, although he is still regarded very much in the light of an instrument in the hands of Marshal Pilsudski, the real ruler of Poland. He belongs to no political party. His interests are scientific, being an expert in electro-chemistry. He discovered the electrical process for the synthetic manufacture of nitrates and also devised a condenser which was valuable in the early days of wireless telegraphy. —Reuter.

DEATH OF M.P.

MR. NEVILLE SMITH-CARRINGTON

(Our Own Correspondent).

The death has occurred at the age of 55 of Mr. Neville Woodford Smith-Carrington, Conservative Member of Parliament for the Rutland and Stamford Division.
Mr. Smith-Carrington held this seat since 1923, prior to which he contested the Loughborough Division of Leicestershire in January and December 1910.
He was a barrister, though not in practice, of the Inner Temple and Northern Circuit.
In 1931 he was President of the Shire Horse Society.

TOKYO DELAYING ACTION

AWAITING INFORMATION FROM MOSCOW

BRAVE DOGS OR COWARD DOGS?

TOKYO, OCT. 11.
"AS BOTH BRAVE DOGS AND COWARD DOGS BARK A LOT, WE MUST WAIT DEVELOPMENTS BEFORE DECIDING WHICH THE SOVIET IS," DECLARED A FOREIGN OFFICE SPOKESMAN, COMMENTING ON THE HISHIKARI DOCUMENTS ISSUE THIS MORNING.

He recalled what he termed a "recent boasting bellicose" article in the Soviet Press, which led him to the belief that the Soviet was possibly trying to jockey Japan into war.

It is reliably learned, in the meantime, that the Soviet delegates have refused to continue the railway negotiations in Tokyo until the arrested Soviet officials of the C.E.R. are released.

CORRESPONDENT'S RESPONSIBILITY

The Tokyo correspondent of the Tass Agency, who circulated the Hishikari documents to the Japanese Press, is being examined this afternoon in order to decide whether he should be expelled from the country.

The Foreign Office has not yet made up its mind on what action it will take arising out of the publication of the documents.

It is understood that the Foreign Office is awaiting a full report from Mr. Ota, the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow, before deciding upon the course of action to be followed.

Before any demarche is drawn up, however, it is taken for granted that the War Office, and possibly the Cabinet, will be consulted. —Reuter.

MOSCOW REPORTS.

Moscow, Oct. 10.
A great view is taken of the situation arising from the arrest of four Soviet Employees of the Chinese Eastern Railway and the interference of "Manchukuo" with the Normal Management.

Further incidents are occurring almost hourly and the Tass Agency to-day issues details of fresh developments. The Soviet does not make any attempt to hide the fact that the whole question of joint management of the railway is now being fought out.

Although much correspondence has already passed concerning the arrest of the Soviet employees without providing any satisfaction for the Moscow Government, M. Slavutsky, the Soviet Consul-General in Harbin, to-day made a formal enquiry regarding the charges on which the arrests were made.

A representative of the Manchukuo Foreign Office replied that they are "merely arrested for examination" in connexion with an inquiry concerning suspected transgressions of duty.

M. Slavutsky insisted upon their immediate release. The Manchukuo representative undertook to forward the request to his government, but declared that the Consul-General would not be allowed to visit the arrested men.

MANCHURIANS RETIRE.

The Manchurian Assistant Manager of the Railway has requested the chairman of the Council of the Administration to recognise the Manchurians appointed to the Council in the place of the Soviet employees.

The chairman refused, upon which the Manchurian members of the Council left the gathering en masse and the meeting closed owing to the lack of a quorum.

U.S. STRIKE BLOODSHED

THREE KILLED IN FIGHT IN CALIFORNIA

PITCHED BATTLE

Washington, Oct. 11.
Three men were killed and fifteen injured in a pitched battle at Bakersfield, California, yesterday, between striking cotton pickers and ranchers.

Conflicts between workers and employers, the continuance of strikes all over the country, continue to hinder progress towards recovery.

Thousands of steel and coal strikers in the Pittsburgh area returned to work to-day, but there are still thirty-five thousand miners refusing to return to work in Western Pennsylvania.

Coal strikes continue to create serious problems for Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Alabama.

SILK STRIKE.

Meanwhile, silk strikers from New Jersey and Pennsylvania are protesting vigorously against the wage provided in the Silk Industry Code, and ten thousand automobiles and tool and die strikers have protested to the N.R.A. alleging that their employers are deliberately violating the Recovery Act.

The possibility of the National Recovery Administration regulating all wages soon is now envisaged.

A suggestion that this solution of difficulties be studied with a view to adoption was made by Senator Wagner, in the course of an appeal to the National Federation of Labour to persuade its members to arbitrate before striking.

NEW ANTI-WAR TREATY

SOUTH AMERICAN PACT

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 10.
A new anti-war treaty which is hoped will serve to stabilise conditions in South America has been drawn up and signed by the leading States of Central and South America.

The anti-war treaty outlaws aggressions and the forcible acquisition of territory.

It was signed at Rio to-day by the representatives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Mexico, Paraguay and Uruguay in the presence of many diplomats and notabilities.

The only notable absentee from the list of signatories is Bolivia, even now engaged in a dispute with Paraguay (a signatory) regarding territorial rights in the Gran Chaco.

Other South American States, Peru and Colombia among them, are expected to adhere to the Treaty shortly. —Reuter.

SOCIALIST RIOTS

NEWSPAPER BAN SEQUEL

Vienna, Oct. 10.
Serious riots have broken out at Ottakring, the working-class suburb of Vienna, following a Socialist demonstration of protest against the Government's ban on the Arbeiter Zeitung.

The rank and file, however, took matters into their own hands last night and serious disturbances occurred.

BRIDGES GUARDED.

Extra police have now been drafted into other working-class districts of Vienna as a precautionary measure in consequence of further demonstrations, while all entrances to the city bridges over the Danube are heavily guarded by police. —Reuter.

U.S. WHEAT EXPORT SUBSIDY

Agreement Signed by Mr. Wallace

Washington, Oct. 10.

Mr. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, has signed the Wheat Marketing agreement, subsidising the export of about 35,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat from the North-West States.

The export of the cereal will start almost immediately. —Reuter.

FRANCO-GERMAN TALKS

Geneva, Oct. 10.

An important and unexpected development in the disarmament position occurred to-night, although the prospects have not been distinctly improved, except as showing a more friendly atmosphere.

Herr Nadeloh, the chief German delegate, called upon the French Foreign Secretary, M. Paul Boncour, and was closeted with him for about ninety minutes, during which their rival standpoints were discussed from every angle.

Herr Nadeloh was markedly conciliatory. He expressed the sincere desire of his government to reach a solution of the disarmament question, but they were compelled to take the stand that the convention must be such that Germany could freely accept, and carry out.

The whole tone of Herr Nadeloh's approach was friendly, but M. Paul Boncour emphasised that France was unable to make concessions on the fundamental points. —Reuter.

LONDON CHINESE AND DOUBLE TENTH

London, Oct. 10.

Sixty Chinese students and numerous British friends packed China House to-day at an informal tea party held in celebration of the anniversary of the Republic.

The celebrations will conclude to-night with a dance at the Hambone Club. —Reuter.

PRAVA STABBING AFFAIR

MAN CHARGED WITH AIDING

A stabbing affray, following a family quarrel, on the West Point Praya on Sunday, during which a boatman was stabbed in the back by his nephew, had a sequel in the Central Police Court this morning, when Tam So-ty, was charged before Mr. Balfour with aiding and abetting in the commission of the crime.

Detective-Inspector Murphy said the man who inflicted the wound had absconded. Accused was formally remanded for seven days.

Chesterton, Indiana, Oct. 11.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Here's a Perfect Match for Summer Hospitality
PAINT THE CUSHION'S GAY PATTERN ON YOUR TABLE TOP

Summer is replacement time, so far as furniture is concerned. With the bright summer sunlight, you can get an accurate idea of just what your home needs much more easily than you can when hearth fires and electric lights soften things.

While turning your living room into a summer sanctuary, how about a few very summery looking things? Or, if you have the advantage of possessing a good porch, why not move the family out into it for all their relaxation? Better still, if you have a yard that is somewhat secluded by trees or fences, get everybody out where their feet can rest some time during each day.

Gingham Lends Gay Air

This year the chair and table ensembles are most enticing. Any home can use such an ensemble practically any time it appears on the horizon. For little cost and less effort, you can assemble your own.

The chair and table shown here are an ideal pair for porch, garden or summer living room. The chair, of white enameled rattan, has a cushion and upholstered back of black and white plaid gingham. The table repeats the design in enamel on its round top.

Carrying out the design of a material on a wood surface is not as complicated as it may seem. By ruling straight lines in pencil and

carefully following them with a small brush most any plaid or striped design can be executed by the amateur painter. Dots are best spaced with a compass.

Cautious With Flowers!

Flower patterns are, of course, more difficult and should not be attempted unless the painter has some knowledge of drawing and design.

A quickly drying lacquer is the best medium for this sort of work. A coating of white shellac can be added for extra service.

Tie-ups of curtains and table in this manner are also effective. While this sort of thing done with restraint adds novel charm to a room, too much of it, too many matching articles, would only be garish or monotonous.

Be startling, but be careful!

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton.

Daddy kissed his family goodbye and left the train. That was a signal for two-year-old Wallace to set up a yell. Instantly his ten-year-old brother laid himself out to amuse the baby. He and his mother spent the day trying to keep little brother quiet.

Wallace was two all right. He had a whole mouthful of teeth. And as he dashed up and down the aisle he could steady himself on the speeding car better than a grown person.

People got tired after a while trying to divert him so his tired mother and patient brother could have a rest.

Too Much Attention.

His mother tried to make him take a nap. No sir! He would not sleep. Choo-choo trains are too exciting. No one can expect a baby to sleep with the world roaring under him and around him.

But I think he might have slept but for two things.

His mother evidently had expected a circus as she had come prepared with food.

About every half hour he was given a bottle of milk or a bottle of something brown. He was a year past bottle age but there were enough bottles to stock a store.

In between times he was fed either with crackers or sandwiches. When Wally wasn't drinking he was eating and when he wasn't doing either he was usually screaming.

Then there was the matter of attention. He knew they expected him to be naughty. He loved to be coaxed and nursed and fed and run after. That grand brother of his gave up every second of the long journey trying to help his mother out. I have seldom seen anything like it in a boy of his age.

Travelling With Babies.

These two things, too much food and too much attention, were responsible for the baby's condition, which by three o'clock was pitiful.

I was sorry for the whole family, the tired mother especially. She was trying to keep the baby quiet I suppose, on account of the other passengers. But it didn't do any good anyway.

It is terribly hard to travel with children of that age. It is easy to give advice but only a mother knows how hard it is to follow it.

One thing that is important is to understand rather than overfeed a little child on a train. The more excited and tired a baby is, the less work his stomach can do.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart.

Hurried, last-minute shopping never pays when it comes to buying shoes.

Don't select your first autumn dress, hat, gloves and bag in an orderly manner and then dash frantically into the nearest shoe shop to get your shoes.

Naturally, you want your shoes to look nice and flatter your feet. But don't sacrifice beauty for comfort. Makers of fine shoes know that a good shoe can be handsome and comfortable at the same time.

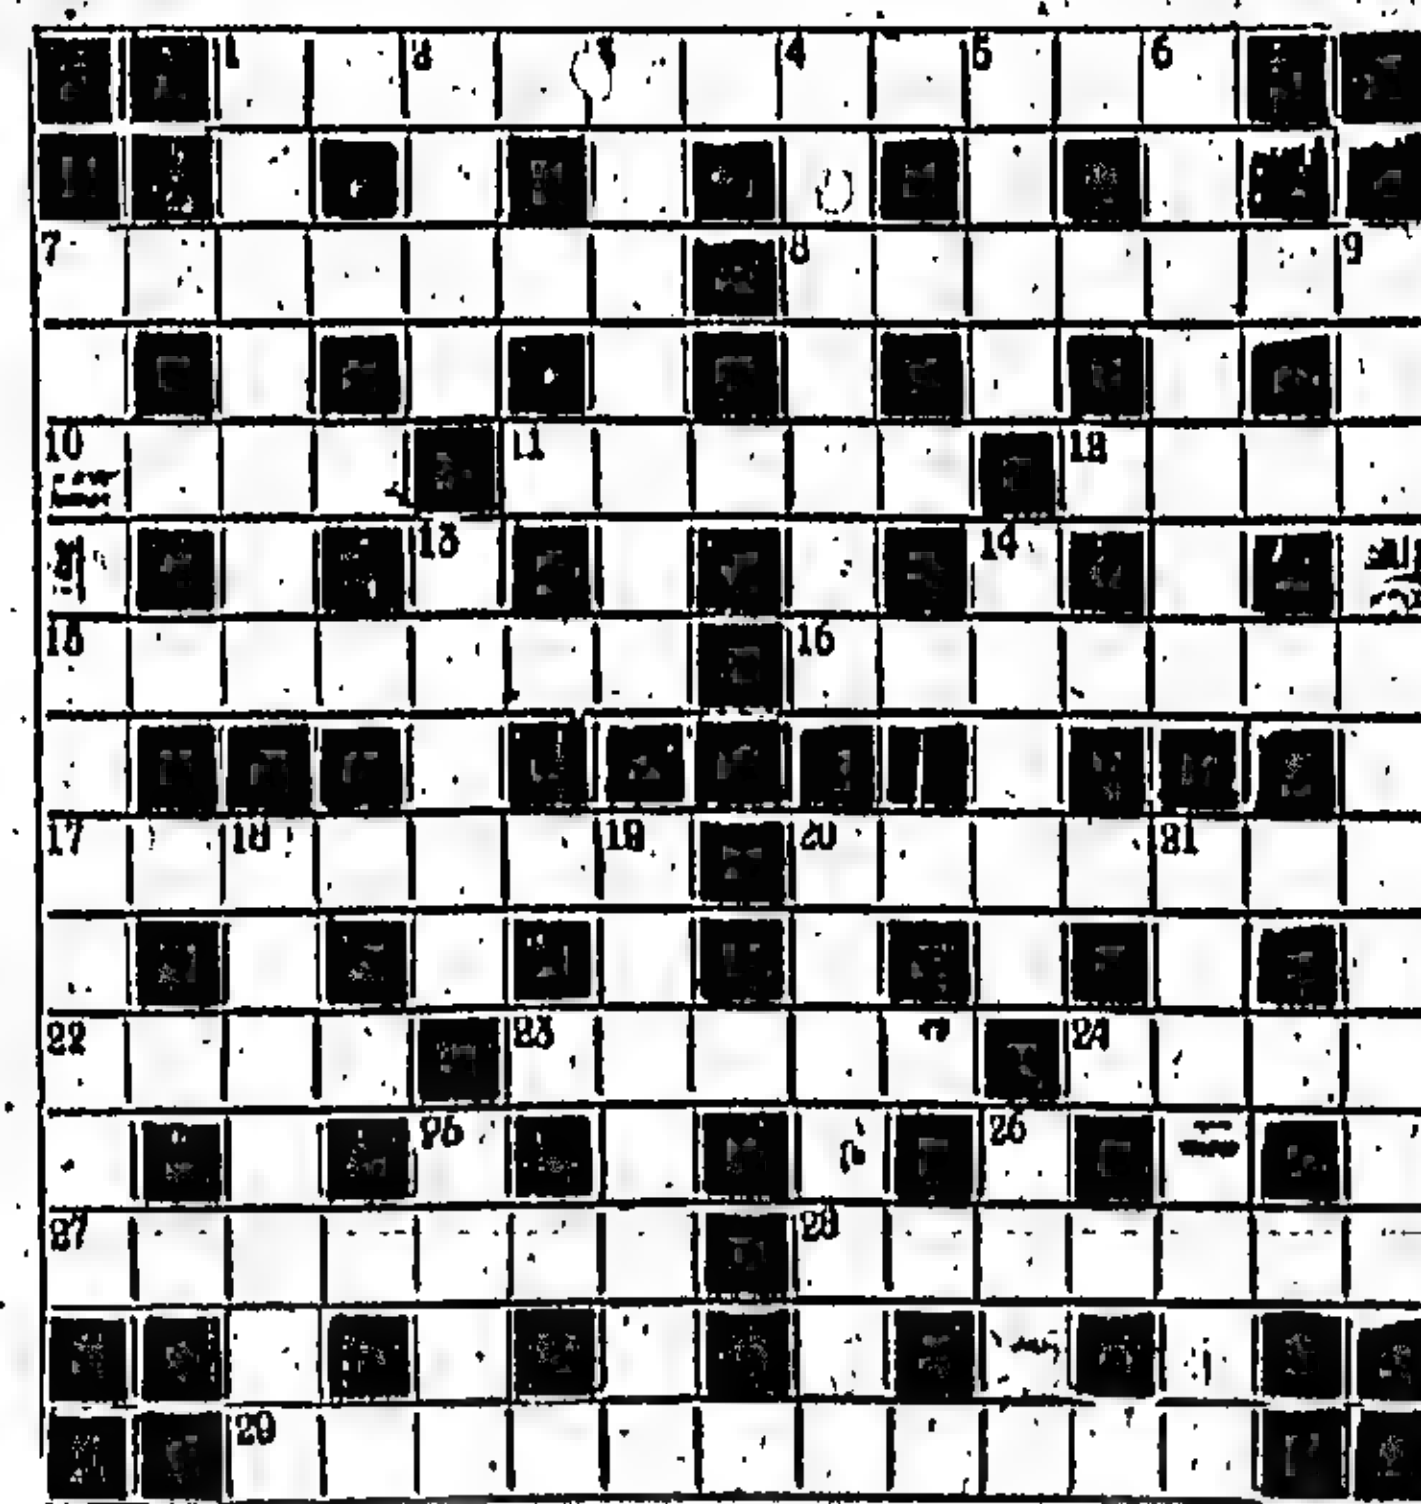

Consideration of your arches is all-important, for the height of the heel and shape of the shoe depends on it.

Odd as it may sound, there are some women who have arches which are not comfortable in heels that are flat. So, if your feet ache, don't assume that it is caused by the high heels you are wearing. Consult a foot specialist. It's possible that the arches in the shoes are all wrong.

As a rule, you're likely to be more comfortable and walk more gracefully in medium-height walking heels.

See that your new shoes are long enough. It's better to get a whole size larger than to have your toes covered with corns before fall is well under way.

CHAPTER XLIV

Eve awakened next morning to an unaccustomed sound. Her mother was bawling something in a bowl. Sleepily Eve roused herself. Sleepily she began to play the guessing game that she and Esther had played when they heard that familiar sound on mornings long ago. The game was to guess what particular treat was in store for them and the winner always received the first serving of waffles or muffins or whatever it was their mother had prepared.

"Waffles," Eve guessed, because her mother knew how much she liked them. Then, as a faint fragrance of bacon and coffee came to her, she jumped out of bed, awakened herself thoroughly with a hasty shower and dressed quickly for the office. Her mother, she remembered, thought it slovenly to appear at the breakfast table in pajamas or negligee.

Eve left a little later with the understanding that her mother was to meet her at noon at a fashionable tea room. After a leisurely luncheon they went to the art museum. When Kate Bayless protested at Eve's devoting so much time to her entertainment her daughter explained, "I had to go to the museum some time this week to take notes for my column so I asked Mr. Barnes if I could do it to-day. Usually I go in the evening, though there's no real reason why I should. It's office work and I'm within my rights to do it in office hours."

"Way of course, if that's it," her mother agreed. "Now you just attend to your notes and I'll take care of myself. I've always wanted to take my time at a place like this instead of hurrying through and not getting more than a glimpse of anything. When I've seen enough for one time I'll do a little shopping. There are some things Esther wanted me to get for the baby."

Eve took her mother to dinner that evening at a hotel where an orchestra that Kate had heard over the radio was playing. Here the patrons were permitted to select a part of the musical programme and Eve, unknown to her mother, sent a note to the leader of the orchestra, asking for two of her mother's favourite songs. After dinner they went to the early showing of a movie and returned home, weary and ready for bed.

Tuesday evening Eve took her mother to see Marya and Ray in their charming home and Wednesday Mrs. Penney entertained them at dinner. Arlene and Sam also were invited.

"You have nice friends, Eve," Kate Bayless said after the visit to Mrs. Penney's apartment. "She had picked up her crocheted work—a little cap she was making for Esther's baby—and settled herself in a chair by the fire. "And they have nice homes—real homes. Daughter, when are you going to quit working for other people and settle down to marriage in earnest?"

"I—Dick and I have a nice home, too, Mama."

"Just now Dick has exactly no home at all. Nor you, either. I can't look on and see you making a mess of your life, dear child, without warning you how it is likely to end."

"I didn't say much at first about your working after you were married. I thought that by this time you'd probably have a baby and would be glad to stay at home and keep house and let your husband earn the money. Then, when Dick got this new job I was so glad. I thought, of course, that you'd go with him. How long will his work keep him away, Eve?"

"A year," he thinks. Possibly longer." Eve's voice was very low.

"And after that? What if his next job takes him somewhere else instead of bringing him here again?"

"I—I don't know, Mother."

"Child, you're not happy. Living this way. You don't look happy. And you never even speak of your husband unless I bring up the subject. Why don't you give up your work at Bixby's and go to him. Eve? Don't you want to go?"

For answer Eve rose, flung herself into her mother's arms and sobbed against her comforting shoulder. Kate patted her, murmuring endearments, and encouraging her to relieve her unhappiness in tears. Presently when Eve had gained some control over her voice she confessed, "Oh, I want him so dreadfully, Mother, but I'm not sure he wants me!"

And she told her mother of the estrangement that had arisen.

"I guess I'm partly to blame for all this," Kate Bayless went on when Eve had dried her eyes and was sitting on a low stool at her mother's feet.

"You? Why how could you be to blame? You were hundreds of miles away!"

"Well, I always tried to save you from even the little hardships when you were a child. I thought there would be time enough for you to face such things when you were older. What I overlooked was to make you see that when you left home and went out into the business world and into a home of your own you'd have to begin to do some of the hard things yourself and sacrifice your own wishes and comfort sometimes for others. I thought you'd see it yourself, Eve. I didn't realize that you needed to be told."

"But I do hard things—loads of them!" Eve insisted. "All the deadly, routine things that Barnes hates to do he gives to me. If you'd ever see how hard I work at Bixby's, Mama, you wouldn't say such a thing!"

"Well, maybe you do—at Bixby's where it doesn't really matter. But at home, Eve? Did you do any of the hard things at home or did you put them all on Dick?"

"You admit that he did nearly all the cooking. Was that fair? Was that going fifty-fifty as you're so fond of putting it?"

"Why shouldn't he do it, when he always got home first in the evening?"

"Well, what about breakfast?"

"Dick had to get to work earlier than I did. Why should he expect me to get up a half hour earlier just to make him some coffee and toast and boil eggs when he could do it as easily himself?"

"Perhaps he could do it as easily. But do you suppose that was the kind of home he looked forward to when he married you? No, Eve, if you are determined to keep an outside job after you married, the least you could do was to take half the responsibility at home, too.

"Of course your husband loves you and wants you to go to Pine Forest or any other place his work takes him. He wants you to make a home for the two of you. If he doesn't tell you so anymore, maybe it's pride. Or maybe you've hurt his feelings. A woman gets crabby, Eve, when she works outside her home after she's married. The two jobs are too much for her strength and nerves. You ought to be building up reserve strength that you might need in case of sickness. Instead you're getting thinner and more nervous every day."

Eve did not promise, nor did she write the letter. The next evening she came home as swiftly as a taxi could bring her with the news that Earle Barnes was to leave Bixby's June first to become general manager of a much larger department store in Chicago and that Mr. Bixby had asked her to take his place when he was gone.

TRUCE REACHED

FANG CHEN-WU AGREES TO STOP FIGHTING

Peking, October 10. Following the example set by the Government, General Fang Chen-wu has ordered his troops to cease operations, thus giving full effect to the armistice.—Reuter.

Rebels Active.

Peking, Oct. 10. Renewed activity amongst the rebels is reported in an official communiqué issued after a sharp engagement yesterday evening at Kaoliang. The rebels attacked the main Government position at Mafang this morning; but were repulsed.

Peace overtures have broken down owing to the obvious lack of sincerity on the part of the rebel leaders.

Troops under General Tang Yulin, who have thrown in their lot with General Fang Chen-wu, are reported as having arrived at Hulaho, south of the Great Wall, and their early fusion with General Fang's forces is anticipated.

The censorship at Peking has been most strict and three morning newspapers have been suspended for a week for publishing unauthorized military news.—Reuter.

WAR DEBT TALKS.

STABILISATION AGAIN TO FOREFRONT

Washington, Oct. 10. Stabilisation appears once again to be to the forefront of the Anglo-American War Debt negotiations, which opened in earnest to-day.

The Journal of Commerce states that it is reported that the U.S. dollar and the British pound may be stabilised at two-thirds their former gold parity.

The New York Times states that it has been definitely established that a ten per cent. lump sum is unacceptable to America as settlement of War Debts. A further token payment from Britain on December 15 is suggested if negotiations are not concluded by that time.

In view of president Roosevelt's hitherto sphinx-like attitude of a sympathetic listener, the burden of negotiations has been thrown upon the British representatives, the newspaper adds.—Reuter.

BEATEN BY NAZIS

AMERICAN CITIZEN LODGES PROTEST

Berlin, Oct. 10. An American citizen, an official in the Woolworth Company here, whose name is Wells, protested through the American Consul to-day against maltreatment by a crowd of Nazis because he failed to salute the Nazi flag.

Wells, whose face was badly battered, asserts that he was walking with his wife when the incident occurred. He summoned the police, but they refused to intervene.

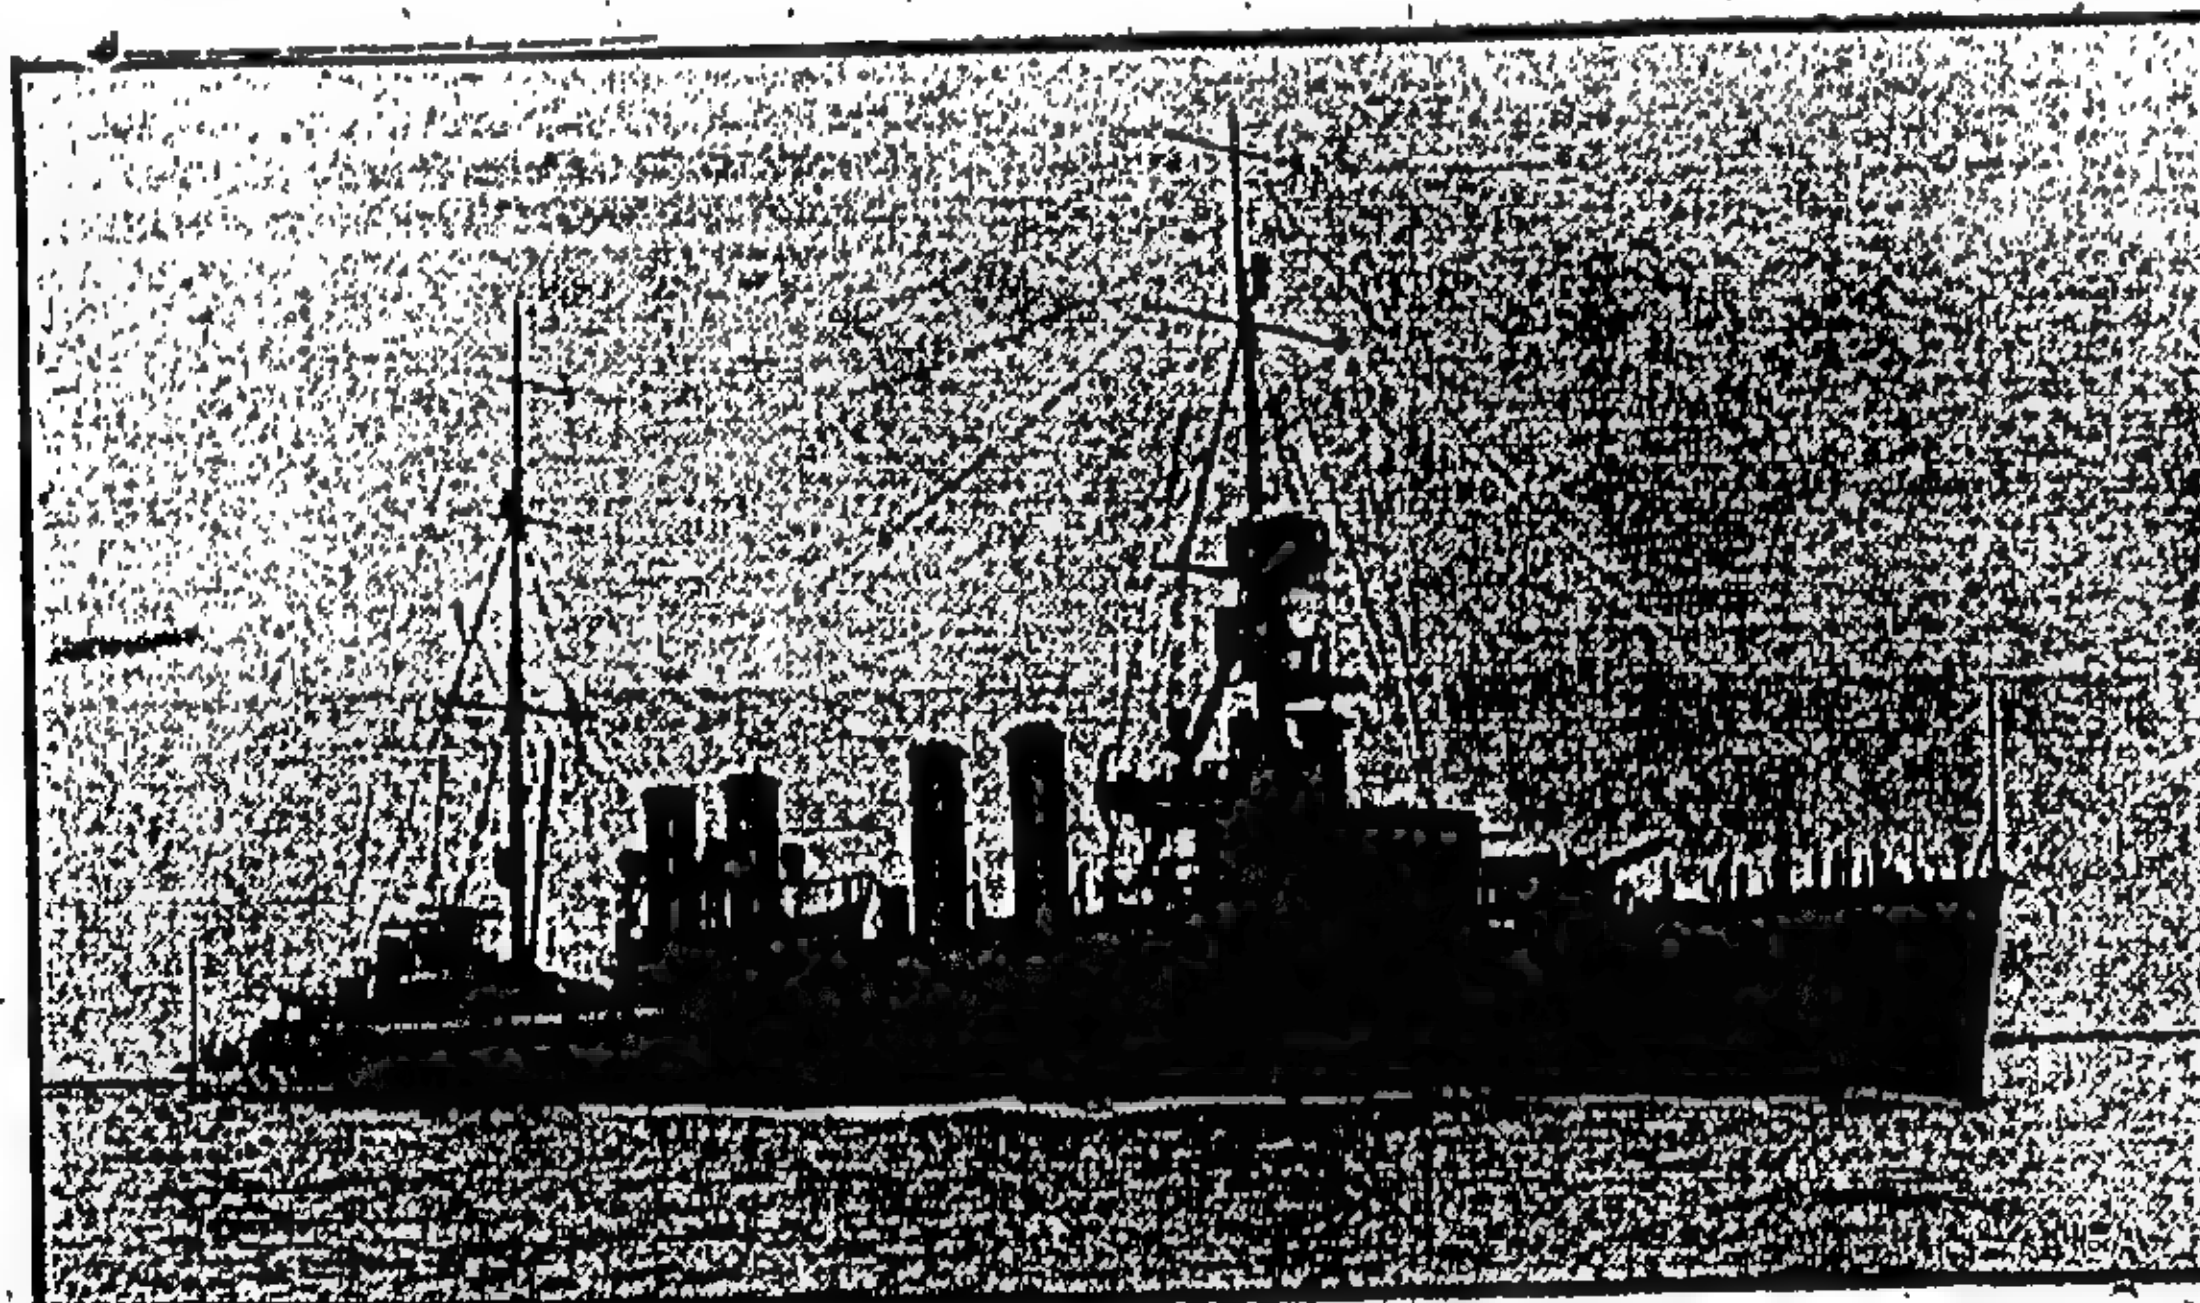

A German-Jew, but a naturalised South African, Sigmund Koenig, recently got prompt redress following a violent Nazi assault when the authorities learned he was a British subject. An apology was made, his medical expenses refunded and a promise was given to punish the malefactors.—Reuter.

Gar Wood, left, again winner in the international speedboat trophy race on the Detroit river, smilingly accepts the congratulations of his defeated opponent, Hubert Scott-Paine, right, as their two mechanics look on. The British challenger finished the course of 35 nautical miles 22.33 seconds behind the American defender of the Harmerworth trophy.

In command of the U. S. Navy special service squadron which was rushed to Cuba to protect American lives and property when the new revolt flared on the island is Rear Admiral C. S. Freeman, shown above. Also shown is the U.S.S. Richmond, a light cruiser carrying a complement of 425 enlisted men and 65 marines, on which Admiral Freeman makes his headquarters.

This boat literally was blown right out of the water by the force of the terrific hurricane that struck the Florida east coast and did extensive damage in the central part of the state. The scene is on the shore of Lake Worth at West Palm Beach.

TRADE PROBLEMS

JAPAN'S THREAT TO EUROPE

U.S. EXPERIMENT & BRITAIN

Europe and America's trade problems in the face of growing Asiatic competition was one of the themes of a luncheon address on "The Effect of Mechanisation in Employment" by Mr. T. D. Barlow, past president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, to members of the Office Appliance Trades Association.

Japan was shewing that, aided by mechanisation, she could produce as well, or nearly as well, as the European countries and at an infinitely lower standard of life.

If the gates were opened to them, what would happen to England, asked Mr. Barlow?

Mr. Barlow expressed the view that tariffs and embargoes had tended to keep down consumption. In a few years our population would begin to decline, and he thought that, for a variety of reasons, this was desirable, especially in the industrialised areas of the North of England, South Wales, and similar districts.

If we could produce in five hours what we formerly produced in ten, there was a case of reducing hours of work. That would involve keeping up wages.

He admitted the experiment of higher wages being tried in the United States, but he did not think such an experiment would be a success in this country at present.—Reuter.

Bata

Gloucester Building.

Hongkong, October 9, 1933.

Dear Madam,
Dear Sir,

We cordially invite you to pay a visit to our store at Gloucester Building to inspect our wide variety of shoes for ladies and gentlemen, also for children. You will be under no obligation to buy.

We have a large selection of shoes of the finest workmanship and in all fittings. In this assortment you will find comfort, fit, style and wearing quality. Imported shoes are still expensive in this Colony, but it is our policy to give our customers good imported shoes at the lowest possible prices.

The Bata Shoe Company is one of the largest in the world and has the most complete chain-store system in Europe, also in all important cities in the world.

We own more than 3,000 stores. The increasing demand for Bata shoes from a satisfied public constantly demands more stores even in times such as the present.

Our factories are in all European countries. This year we started a factory in England.

Prices of raw materials are coming down. By virtue of our huge turnover we are able to take advantage of this fact by reducing considerably the prices of Bata shoes.

Our principle is—BETTER SHOES AT LESS COST. Although we have reduced prices, our shoes are of the same very high quality as before. We guarantee every pair. Our motto is PERFECT FOOTWEAR.

In our show-windows there are displayed 260 pairs of shoes on which there has been a reduction of from 20 to 30%.

You now have the opportunity to buy the same shoes at a little more than half the former price.

We shall be glad to serve you in your home at any time. Give us a ring. You will be pleased to see, and we shall be happy to show, Hongkong's finest footwear.

Always at your service, we remain,

Yours faithfully,

BATA SHOE CO., LTD.

C.E.R. CRISIS

War clouds are thickening fast in the Far East and little attempt is now being made to conceal international perturbation. For if the storm bursts, there is no saying to what degree it may extend and who may become involved. To-day, for the first time, the danger looks real. The fuss being made by Japan over the publication of the Hishikari documents is ominous in itself. Threats of sterner action against the Soviet can hardly be justified by the facts—unless—cause for action is being sought. "Intense indignation" at their publication in Japan looks a trifle thin when the rigidity of the censorship is borne in mind. Had there been any desire to prevent the revelations from appearing in the Japanese press, nothing could have been easier. Ample warning had been given of the Soviet's intention to publish the documents. If they were suspected to be spurious, there was opportunity for early perusal and denial of authenticity. But Japan waits, permits the documents to be printed throughout the country, and then threatens the severance of diplomatic relations, and sterner action. What is to come next? How far is Japan prepared to go? These are vital questions. The answers may mean peace or war. The most likely interpretation of yesterday's developments is that a trial of strength, in some form, is about to take place. If the Soviet climbs down on this issue, she may as well surrender all along the line because Japanese pressure will be unceasing. There seems little room for a half-way house. And the Soviet's prestige demands that she should not climb down. There it is that the danger lies. The relative positions of the parties to the dispute have changed markedly in the last few months. The Soviet six months ago had her anxieties in the West as well as in the East. M. Litvinoff's activities in London have removed all peril on the Western frontier and Moscow is able to turn to the East with greater confidence. The seriousness of the outlook in these circumstances cannot be ignored. It was always too much to expect the constant bickering and friction over the Chinese Eastern Railway to continue indefinitely. Russia was bound to make a stand and has chosen to make it now. Japan's readiness to make a case looks alarmingly like the first stage of a grave crisis.

NOTES OF THE DAYDISARMAMENT

Mr. Baldwin's plain forceful speech at Birmingham makes it the more surprising that British commentators on the disarmament crisis should still stress the importance of the British draft convention. No doubt it will be given a second reading, the ordinary rules of procedure will be followed, but it is blind deception to suggest that it really matters at this stage. The convention is technical; the trouble is political. A fundamental difference has arisen between the declared policies of France and Germany. The issue is clear for all to see. One or other must give way or there can be no convention. Until their rival viewpoints have been adjusted, all discussion of any convention is sheer waste of time.

THE FIRST HURDLE

Mr. Henderson has set out the principal points of difficulty in admirably concise fashion. His analysis places the problems in an order which suggests that the clash will come at the first hurdle, concerning the duration of the first stage mentioned in the convention. France places it at four years, and during that period will not reduce her forces by a man or her armaments by a gun. International supervision must be agreed upon, and in such a way that guarantees can be vouchsafed that Germany is not re-arming secretly. Herr Hitler's policy is equally rigid. He claims that Germany has no desire to re-arm but insists on the disarmament of other nations. He demands full recognition of the fundamental principle of equality, which means nothing less than that he claims the right to re-arm if France does not come down to Germany's level. Germany's right to equality is not seriously challenged, but it must be effected by a scaling down of other armaments not by re-armament of Germany. Here it is that the peril lies.

UNITY

All is not over and finished yet, however, unpleasant as are the prospects. The Bureau has met and Herr Noldey has urged that the Conference should get down to an examination of the British draft convention. The parties mean business and there should be quick decisions. The one ground for hope lies in the fact that none of the leading participants will be welcome being saddled with the responsibility for causing a collapse. It always remains possible, therefore, that the outlook will alter. The deadlock may be less complete than it looks. The strength of the combination in the spirit of faith and peace and the impression that that unity makes upon Germany will be the deciding factor, in which connexion the good contacts between France and Italy may be regarded as highly favourable. The United States and Britain are already solidly behind France on this issue. And Germany could hardly expect things to be otherwise when she teaches the glorification of war for its own sake in Nazi-doctrinaire schools.

BRITISH TRADE

A further reduction in September of 74,000 in the number of unemployed in Britain is proof, if proof were needed, that the undeniable expansion of industry in Britain continues, and at a heartening pace. Seasonal changes have been in the strength of the general upward movement. There are 700,000 to 800,000 more people at work than there were a year ago; and there are few trades that have not shared in the increase. We gather that the buoyancy of London is an important factor and that North is recovering much more slowly. But there is hope for it in the fact that the world cannot go on much longer without new steel while a crowd of 18,000 at a Cardiff football match is unofficial evidence of the greatly improved situation in South Wales.

PROBLEM OF PUBLIC WORKS—II. DANGER OF SPENDING SCHEMES

By SIR ERNEST BENN

The justification of a programme of expenditure on public works, in order to relieve unemployment, was defended yesterday by Sir Arthur Salter. In the following article Sir Ernest Benn replies to the arguments put forward by Sir Arthur.

If brains and courage are adequate substitutes for sense and experience, then Sir Arthur Salter is a force to be reckoned with. It is a truism to say that the poorer the case, the more the need for first-class brains to support it, but the pity is that poor cases seem to have a peculiar fascination for great brains, a circumstance for which the world in recent times has paid a heavy price, as it has given us that curious affliction known as the intelligentsia.

The skill of Sir Arthur's plan for more public works lies not so much in the points he makes as in the careful avoidance of the really vital parts of the argument. He is concerned to promote public works financed by borrowed money and succeeds, except for one little sentence, in keeping the reader's mind absolutely clear of the notion that borrowing involves the reverse operation of paying. Sir Arthur and his associates, if they do not believe that we can go on borrowing for ever, certainly display no sign of anxiety about the £10,000,000 of existing public debt. Some of these people know quite well that if the debt can be made large enough, it will have to be repudiated, and being desirous to overthrow "the system" they welcome Sir Arthur Salter and his spending schemes as means to that end.

Sir Arthur has the courage to make reference to the "regular" amortisation of old debts. He would do better to call attention to the farcical inadequacy of such sinking funds as exist, and to the lack of safeguards against the misuse of them by local authorities. Since the war these local governments, which are now urged to borrow, have, in fact, raised loans equal to three times the total of the pre-war National Debt, and the sinking funds attached to these huge liabilities amount at present to no more than five per cent. of the whole. The ratepayers are in many cases liable to the extent of £50 per head of the population (£300 per family), and yet Sir Arthur would have them owe more. Much of this money has been raised on the loose modern sixty-year basis, a thoroughly immoral proceeding, for the roads and other wasting assets on which it has been spent will be worn out and valueless long before the debts have been paid.

Little wonder, therefore, that Sir Arthur does not think it worth while to trouble your readers with his views on the ethics of borrowing and paying. His reference to the lower rates of interest, and the saving to the Government and to the local authorities by reason of the numerous conversion operations, comes painfully near to the dishonest. Without referring to the records, I hazard the statement that Sir Arthur Salter used his powerful influence to persuade us to make "conversion" a success on the grounds that the process would lead to lower taxation and lower rates. No recent political chicanery is more disgraceful than the way in which that prospect, indeed pledge, has been ignored. When, a year ago, our splendid middle class supported with enthusiasm the reduction of their income by some fifty millions, they did not conceive it as possible that the Government, egged on by the Arthur Salters, would proceed to leave the burden of rates and taxes untouched and then suggest the piling up of more liabilities.

Three-quarters of the space allotted so generously to Sir Arthur Salter is occupied with a catalogue of the things he does not desire to do, coupled with an astounding confession of opportunism. He forsakes the high ground of Discovery and descends to mere time-serving, protesting that his ambition is the essence of modesty and his suggestions only appropriate in present circumstances. He suggests that if and when trade revives—public expenditure will be reduced; his colleagues in the Civil Service will then come forward, and in the pure spirit of public service, insist upon the shutting down of work undertaken for "temporary reasons" which have then gone. To make the point the clearer, he remarks that an expansion of public expenditure in 1928 "was not the appropriate remedy." I can only regret that Sir Arthur does not appear to have expressed that view in 1928, when his opinion might have been very helpful to us.

I am frankly puzzled by this descent to self-confessed opportunism on the part of the greatest of all the planners, one who professes really to know how to arrange the perfect world. I do not remember any reference to "present circumstances," when Sir Arthur, as financial autocrat at Geneva, distributed League of Nations loans all over Europe. My belief is that every one of these disastrous transactions was recommended to its investors, victims on the ground that it would solve some problem in a permanent way. Whether, however, Sir Arthur, when dealing with Austria, Greece, Hungary, and many other bankrupt States, was his own self—a permanent planner—or merely an apologetic opportunist does not matter, the unhappy fact remains that in all these cases his advice was bad and its results disastrous.

I have referred to Sir Arthur's courage, some may prefer to call it lack of discretion, arising perhaps from a desire to appear thoroughly up-to-date. But so great an authority ought really to possess the patience necessary to wait for facts to be facts before using them in argument. He has, I imagine, never ceased to regret a sentence in "Recovery" in which he commended "good constructive loans like those arranged by the League, or a man of such creative vision as Mr. Ivar Kreuger." This unhappy lapse should make him more careful of adopting danger-

The Very Idea!

A FAIRY TALESKI

By Edward Kellyski, Bolsho

WHAT with Rasputin and the Empress at the Queen's, and the Soviet and Manchukuo at each others' throats we think we can tell a fairy tale, too. Something that will bring a sob to your throat, and make strong men want to go out for a glass of H.K. Beer.

It was the time of the dark days in Russia. Lydia Cocotina, oppu-cleaner to the town of Novgorod, flung her ikon round her thin shoulders and glided into the night. It was Ivan's name-day—Ivan Orrikkoff, office-boy to the town commissar of the dreaded Vodka, or secret police. She must get him a bratski, or feast. She would go to the heaps of muk, or rubbish. Her fingers swiftly sifted the muk, and soon closed on a sardinetin, or fish-container. In it were several versets of oil, and one sardine, or little fish. She hurried homeward, furtively concealing it beneath her ikon, for to withhold food from the communal stock was a counter-revolutionary act, if not actually sabotage.

She bolted the door behind her, and laid the sardinetin under the assovar. A shot rang out. She glided to the door, but no sound broke the stillness save the cry of a distant moujik. But why was Ivan so late? He had not returned from his toll, three weary roubles away across the steppe. Had he a shot rang out. She glided to the door. A far-off moujik howled. If Ivan had been arrested he would be sent to the dreaded astrakhan-mines. A shot rang out. She glided to the door. A moujik dragged her out by the hair, upon the caviare or step. A voice hissed "You were watched; where are the vitamins hidden?" Lydia stammered "Where is Ivan?" "Omek," grunted the commissar, for it was he. "Liar," she cried, "I heard you shoot him in three places!" The commissar straightened his bala-tarka, "The concealing of food," said he, "is counter-revolutionary. If not actually sabotage, and unless you give me the sardinetin, Ivan will not return. It is the sardine or your lover!" "He is dead," sobbed Lydia, "take it." She brought out the little fish. The commissar snatched it greedily, and as he strode away swung the bodies of the three drunkies, or musk-rats he had just shot for his supper. Suddenly a far-away voice called, "Lydia, I am here." "Ivan," she breathed.

In the distance a moujik howled.THE ETERNAL FEMINE

At 15: "I'm a woman."
At 16: "I'm wonderful."
At 20: "How can they resist me?"
At 21: "I don't look a day over 16."
At 25: "I'd pass for 21 easily."
At 35: "I've still got that school-girl complexion."
At 45: "We women don't age so early these days."
At 55: "I'm glad I'm not old like some people."

TO OUR SON

The world is in a dilemma. We don't know what the heck that means, but there you are—take it or leave it. If the people of the world suffer as much in the next two years as they have suffered in the last two years, then they will have suffered four years in the same fashion, which is ridiculous. If Shakespeare had been living to-day he would have been about 400 years old; but don't let that worry you, for it just goes to show that when the Darwinian theory is combined with the Einstein theory you have to pay your accounts just the same. If there is going to be an earthquake in Japan in two years' time, then that is just two years from now. The barest things we have seen this year have been the Nude Cult and our breakfast, dinner, and tea plates. We have also seen many beautiful things in our life, including one policeman with bare feet.

The rate of exchange is still 1/4%, but we don't know what it is. The Peak is still in the same place, but it won't be if somebody shifts it in the next couple of years—you mark our words, but don't mark them hard, for they're not very strong.

In conclusion we wish to state that we have contracted indigestion from chewing over the present unfinancial problems, and if all the razor-blades in Hongkong were taken outside the harbour and dumped, it would be rather silly, because there would be none left. And so any all of us.

"First they broke me of sucking my thumb and now they're trying to make me stop eating rocks."

THE COLONY'S HIGH DEATH RATE

INCREASE IN 1932

SHOCKING INFANTILE MORTALITY FIGURES

THE EUROPEAN ANALYSIS

The Colony's vital statistics for 1932 show a higher death rate than in 1931 and maintenance of the high infantile mortality rate among the Chinese.

The births registered as having occurred in the Colony were:—Chinese 13,166; Non-Chinese 431; Total 13,597.

The deaths registered among the civilian population of the Colony (including New Kowloon, but excluding the remainder of the New Territories) was 19,820, giving a crude death rate of 24.74, as compared with 24.08 for the previous year.

The following comparative figures are given. In 1932 the number of Chinese deaths were 19,646 in a population of 781,036, giving a death rate of 25.02. The number of non-Chinese deaths was 283 in a population of 19,084, giving a rate of 14.16. In the 1931 the respective figures were: Chinese, 18,566, 761,169, and non-Chinese 281, 19,522, 11.83.

INFANT MORTALITY.

The number of deaths of infants under one year were 6,916 Chinese and 38 non-Chinese.

If the figures for the Chinese births registered represented the total births, which they do not, the infantile mortality rate for this race would be 525.28 as compared with 617.42 which was the equally incorrect rate for the previous year. Allowing that only one third of the births are registered this would still mean a very high infantile mortality figure.

The mortality rate among the non-Chinese was 77.93 as compared with 61.85 in 1931.

EUROPEAN FIGURES.

The Europeans and Americans resident in the Colony numbered 8,800, of whom 6,800 were British. The majority of Europeans and Americans are treated by private practitioners when ill and figures are not available for calculating incidence rates.

There were 283 deaths among the 8,800, giving a death rate of 14.1 per thousand.

SILK STORE BANKRUPT

PUBLIC EXAMINATION OF V. RUPCHAND

A suggestion that debtor had included $20,000 personal expenses in his firm's accounts for the year 1932, was made by the Deputy Official Receiver, Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, at the public examination of Verhonal Rupchand this morning.

Debtor traded as the Kohnor Silk Store and also as the Royal Silk Store. He stated that he began connexion with the local silk trade through his father about 1926.

A dispute with his father led to their separation and in 1929 debtor went to Shanghai and there with a brother set up an export and import business which also handled his father's trade as that port.

This business did not pay and his father paid off the debts and established him at the Kohnor Silk Store with a capital consisting entirely of stock. Owing to the poor stock this business began to lose money and he acquired the Royal Silk Store on condition that he paid the firm's liabilities.

Questioned as to his accounts witness said he did not think he could have included $20,000 personal expenses in his accounts and would like to look up the figures.

The examination was adjourned accordingly.

London, Oct. 10.

The latest Treasury returns show that the ordinary revenue for the current financial year up to October 7, amounted to £287,228, 723. At the corresponding date of last year, the amount stood at £280,725,641.

The ordinary expenditure to date for the current year totalled £350,670,238, which is about £28,500,000 less than the total ordinary expenditure at the corresponding date of last year.—British Wireless.

THE MOTOR SHOW

NEW FEATURES AT OLYMPIA

London, Oct. 10.

The International Motor Show which will open at Olympia on Thursday and which will continue for ten days, is attracting large numbers of visitors to London from abroad.

Undoubtedly the main feature of the show is the adoption at least by practically all the British models of simplified gear mechanism.

Six years ago, the self-change pre-selective device was pioneered by a British firm and this has set a fashion which has in varying forms, been adopted by all the leading manufacturers.

Drivers of new models are thus relieved of all mechanical anxiety and an important contribution is thereby made to road safety.

The respective numbers of cars and chassis on view will be Britain 205, Canada and the United States 34, France 33, Italy 14, Belgium 4, and Czechoslovakia 3. The prices of the models range from £105 to £3,540.—British Wireless.

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, Oct. 10.

Brigadier Bateman-Champain, Frederick Bateman-Champain, Secretary-General of the British Red Cross Society, has passed away at the age of 64.

General Champain had a distinguished military career. Joining the 14th (P.W.O.) West Yorkshire Regiment in 1889, he served with them until his transference to the Indian Army, when he joined the 1st Gurkha Rifles in 1890. He served in the Manipur Expedition in 1891, the Waziristan Field Force in 1893 (medal and clasp), the Chitral Expedition two years later (medal and clasp), the Tirah Expedition in 1897, when he was awarded a clasp and mentioned in despatches, and the European War from 1914 to 1918.

During the latter he saw service in France, Gallipoli, Mesopotamia and North Persia, being mentioned in despatches and created C.M.G.

He was promoted Brigadier-General in 1917, and commanded the British Forces in North West Persia from 1918 to 1921.

He subsequently retired and from 1922 acted as Secretary-General of the British Red Cross Society.

"IF I WERE GIVEN THE OPPORTUNITY TO EXCHANGE MY OWN PERIOD OF TIME FOR ANY OTHER, I WOULD CHOOSE THE NEXT THREE QUARTERS OF A CENTURY."—Andrew Mellon.

The Settlement of International Debt is to be the subject of a lecture to be delivered by Mr. Gustilo, M.Sc. (Com.) on Friday, next at 9.30 p.m. in Room K of the University. All interested are welcome.

Mr. F. C. Jenkin, R.C., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lauder, Dr. C. de Beauchamp, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Coleman, Miss J. Gordon Mackie and Mrs. G. A. Middleton-Smith were among passengers arriving aboard the Empress of Asia this morning.

Mr. W. A. O'Neill, a member of Reuters' staff in China, is shortly to marry Miss Margaret Kirkbride, of Storeycroft, Liverpool. Mr. O'Neill is coming later to Hongkong from Shanghai to take the place of Mr. J. E. Henry in the local office.

POLICE COURT WARNING

TO DEALERS IN MEDICINE

SUMMONS AGAINST DISPENSARY

Arising out of the sale of a medicinal preparation, "for the removal of freckles," containing 65.4 per cent of carbolic acid, which the authorities regarded as a poison, Mr. Chong Yut-fan, the manager of the Sine-German Dispensary, No. 3 A Wing Lok Street, appeared before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning. He was summoned for having sold a poison without being authorised to do so, and for having sold a bottle of liquid containing 65.4 per cent of carbolic acid, considered a poison within the meaning of the Ordinance, without a proper wrapper.

Mr. H. K. Holmes, Crown Solicitor prosecuted, and Mr. D. L. Strellett appeared for the defendant.

A WARNING.

Mr. Holmes said one of the reasons for the case was that there was an increasing tendency for certain drugs to be sold in Hongkong, and the Director of Medical and Sanitary Services considered it essential to stop this from becoming a practice. The wrappers used, generally indicated that all sorts of things were sold, which, if administered by an unqualified person, might have disastrous results. The summons was partly as a warning to anybody dealing in drugs, medicines and cures, who were not registered, and did not understand what they were dealing in.

Mr. Strellett: I gather that Mr. Holmes is dealing with a general practice.

Mr. Holmes.—I don't say that it is becoming a practice, but there is a tendency, and the prosecution is brought only as a warning.

MR STRELLETT'S PLEA.

Mr. Strellett: "I can still say that my friend's remarks do not stand against my client. They represent nothing more than a tendency, and this matter being brought to their notice they will give an assurance it will not be repeated."

"These are a series of patent medicines which have been sent down from Shanghai to various firms, who are selling them. In this particular case the cure to be effected is for the removal of freckles. There is undoubtedly a quantity of carbolic solution in excess of the amount allowed, but actually the wrapper does contain certain warning matter. The public are warned to use it only for the purpose indicated, and not to attempt to bring any portion of it near the mouth, nose or eyes, or take it in any manner other than indicated."

"It is, I admit, a very poor effort to comply with the section. The person who is likely to take this internally is, I submit, quite likely to take any other liquid or even poison."

NOMINAL FINE.

Mr. Schofield.—There is no distinct undertaking that it is a poison in the ordinary sense of the word.

Mr. Strellett.—I ask your Worship to deal with this as a matter for warning. I can give this undertaking, that the defendants are in a perfectly legitimate business, and will not deal in this class of goods again.

Mr. Schofield.—I think under the circumstances a nominal fine will meet the case, as this is a case which we do not get frequently in Court.

Fine $10 on each summons.

GUNNER ON TRIAL

COURT-MARTIAL HEARING

KOWLOON PIER SCENE

Facing three charges, of absconding himself without leave from Stonecutters for 11 hours, 20 minutes on October 1, and two civil offences of assault, Gunner W. Macdonald, of the 20th. Battery R.A., appeared before a district Court Martial at Army Headquarters this morning.

He pleaded not guilty to all charges.

The Court comprised Major H.M.J. McIntyre, R.A., Capt. P.L. Villar, S.W.B., and Lieut. C.C. Garthwaite, R.A. The prosecuting officer was Capt. R.H. Mould, R.A., and the defending officer, Lieut. F. H. V. Purcell, R.A.

Opening, the prosecuting officer stated that the charges arose from accused behaving in a drunken and disorderly manner. The evidence would show that accused left Stonecutters on September 30 with a late leave pass. This pass entitled him to be absent until 1 a.m. At about noon on October 1 he appeared in civilian clothes on Kowloon Pier arguing about the Walla-Walla fare to Stonecutters. He attracted a great deal of attention and an Indian constable arrived on the scene.

Accused, failing to get what he wanted turned on a Chinese named Pang Cheung, of 275, Temple Street, Kowloon who was near striking him with his first on the back of the neck. He then seized him and held him by the coat which was eventually torn.

The value of the coat was $4. The Indian constable intervened and with the assistance of another constable managed to get him to the Water Police Station.

One of the constables, Melda Khan was struck by the accused. There was evidence that accused was drunk at that time. At about 6 p.m. accused was handed over to the Military authorities.

PLEA CHANGED.

The first witness called was L/Bdr. Shute, orderly, who gave evidence of marking accused on the late leave list and ascertaining when he collected the list from the N.C.O. in charge of the guard the following morning that accused had not returned to Stonecutters. About 3 p.m. that afternoon he went to the Water Police Station for accused and found him sleeping in a cell. He smelled of drink but was sober.

After a brief cross-examination of witness, the defending officer stated that he wished to plead guilty to the charge of absconding, the purpose of the former plea being that the witness might be cross-examined.

The Court is proceeding. Other witnesses for the prosecution were Police Sgt. C. G. Smith, of the Hongkong Police, Indian constables Melda Khan and Gonn Khan, and Pang Cheung.

CHINESE WINE.

Prisoner stated that on the evening of September 30 he had been drinking Chinese wine in Hongkong and at about midnight caught the launch which was returning to Stonecutters. On the way across the harbour he was taken ill and on arrival at Kowloon landed to find a latrine. Finding none in the vicinity of the pier he took a rickshaw to a cafe. There he had a few more drinks and fell asleep. When he awoke next morning he felt ill and took some more drinks. He remembered nothing further until he woke up in the police cell in the afternoon.

The prosecuting officer: You say you remember nothing. I have called evidence to show that you caused damage to Pang Cheung's coat. Do you accept liability for that damage?—Prisoner: Yes.

After evidence as to defendant's character had been given, the Court reserved its decision for confirmation.

ALLEGED ASSAULT BY PORTUGUESE

ORIENTAL THEATRE INCIDENT

A. da Silva, of 400, Lockhart Road and R. Crestejo, of 77, Wongnelchung Road, were summoned before Mr. Schofield in the Central Magistracy this morning for assaulting Tsang On at the Oriental Theatre on September 30. The defendants denied the charge.

Mr. W. A. Mackinlay, of Messrs. Deacons, appeared for the complainant.

Hearing was fixed for October 19 at 11 a.m.

ELECTRICITY OF THE FUTURE

RADIATION BY WALL PAPER

Stockholm.

The amazing part that electricity will play in the home of the future was described by Mr. Bertil

Domelj, a Swedish electrical engineer, at the opening of the "Technical Novelties" exhibition at Stockholm.

"The time is on hand," said Mr.

Domelj, "when cards will be automatically dealt at bridge tables and wallpapers and carpets will be used for heat-radiating purposes."

That is the home of the future.

How the Romans heated the homes of the past has been revealed by excavations at Chislesey-les-Macon,

France.

These excavations laid bare the remains of the foundations of a Roman villa of considerable size, which is thought to date from the first or second century A.D. Hot air was used to provide the central heating. It was forced through

HOME FOOTBALL FEATURE: FACTS AND FIGURES

ANOTHER HAPPY DAY FOR HOME TEAMS?

ATTRACTIVE LIST OF GAMES IN FIRST DIVISION

ONE OR TWO GIANTKILLERS AMONG VISITORS

(By "The Pilgrim")

Saturday is going to be a great day—for home clubs!

By the same token it should be a profitable day for punters if they pick their favourites with reserve.

Most of the giants of the game will be on their own pastures, but there are also some giantkillers who perhaps had better be avoided.

Newcastle may repeat their old cup final victory over Arsenal though in view of the northern team's record this is unlikely. Derby may succeed at Hillsborough and Leeds may find more power in their elbow against their old rivals, Manchester City.

I don't think the absence of S. Abel will prevent Fulham taking points against Burnley though at Craven Cottage last Saturday they only managed to share with Hull. Abel, formerly of Chesterfield, broke a collar-bone. He is a strong and thrustful player but I did not think he was clever enough to remain in Second Division football.

It is to be hoped that J. Weddle will not let the Pompey team down against the Spurs on Saturday. He is a frequent scorer and does not often miss an open goal as he did against Leicester.

MANAGER SMITH CONTENTED

With Tottenham's Display

It is of interest to read what Mr. Percy Smith, The Spurs' manager, has to say of the Club's meeting with Arsenal recently at White Hart Lane. The honours were divided.

Mr. Smith said afterwards:—"The result of my team's clash with our near neighbours was a true return of the merits of both teams. The Arsenal, I venture to think, were as satisfied as we were."

"I was impressed with the defensive ability of Arsenal backs and centre half, and had they been only a little less capable throughout that epic struggle, our fast-moving, clever attack would have scored more than one goal."

"We formed a plan in attack and defence to counter the schemes of our opponents and, in the main, my men carried out their instructions. Yet I was disappointed with certain features of our forward play. One forward did not render that assistance usually forthcoming from him and our front line therefore lacked balance. That player in question was by no means a failure, however."

A SEARCHING TEST.

"The goal we scored was deserved, and had Felton failed to convert that penalty it would have been akin to a tragedy. The Arsenal's point was the outcome of one of those incidents of football which lend colour to the game. So far as our fellows were concerned, blame attached to no one, and that is all there is to be said about it."

"I was highly delighted with the work of my goalkeeper and backs, and so I was with the display of the half-backs. Reflection on the match gives me added pleasure, because my youngsters withstood the challenge of such seasoned players as the Arsenal possess."

"Much publicity has been given to the barracking of the Arsenal players as they entered the arena. When told of that incident I took steps to see that nothing of the like occurred again. The relations between the directors and management of the Arsenal and Spurs is of the most cordial character, as was proved by the genial meeting in our board room after the match."

BIG READING CAPTURE

Newton, Fulham's Centre Forward

Reverting to Fulham, I can feel sympathy with the club for the difficulty they have been placed in as a result of Abel's injury. They acquired the Chesterfield man to replace Newton, their very brilliant leader, who was transferred to Reading.

To supporters of Fulham this news came as something in the nature of a bombshell. In Reading it was heartily welcomed. At the Berkshire club Newton has renewed acquaintanceship with Manager Joe Smith, for it was while the latter held the reins of office with Stockport County that Newton was there and creating a great record as a goalgetter.

Fulham agreed to the transfer with regret. The facts were that Mrs. Newton had been ill, and on this account the player had expressed a desire for an engagement.

with a club outside London. The Fulham F.C. gave the matter long consideration, and no sooner was their decision known than Reading stepped in and secured his transfer.

Newton came from Stockport County in 1931, and he confirmed his reputation by leading Fulham to promotion in his first season with them. In that season, 1931-32, he scored 43 goals in 89 League matches.

Several clubs have made inquiries for Newton in recent months. The fee asked for him was not small.

FORECAST ACHIEVEMENT

"ROBIN'S" NINE HOME WINNERS

Another achievement in football forecasting was enjoyed by "Robin" last week, who, in his "Beat the Book" selections, obtained 12 correct results out of 18.

These included nine out of 12 home winners, two out of three away winners, and one out of three draws.

Since the beginning of the season "Robin" has averaged 65 per cent. correct forecast.

ARSENAL have had a crop of injuries already this season due mainly to the hard grounds which prevailed at the opening. Jack, a cut ear, James, a damaged ankle, Coleman, a slipped cartilage, and Hulme, a bad fall, are the more serious of their mishaps.

Priestly, the Irish International though unable to play in one of the early matches for Chelsea, has now captured the crowd at Stamford Bridge by his prowess in the front line.

ALTHOUGH he is said to prefer the inside position he fills, many good judges consider that he is cut out for a winger.

ASTLEY, Brentford's fair haired back, who played in Irish football last season is creating a good impression.

WATSON, the Hammers popular veteran is leading the London team, again this season. With Holliday of Brentford he shares a reputation for matchwinning opportunism.

BLACKPOOL are scouring the country for class inside men. They are going to make a big bid to regain the Club's First division status.

I wonder if that bugbear "local talent" is going to do Bristol City any good?

AFTER conceding 10 goals in their first two matches they brought in Farr, a local lad to fill the pivot position.

STOKE celebrated their 70th birthday recently by adding 600 seats to their stand accommodation.

SELLARS, one of their halves, can throw a ball almost as far as the famous Weaver. He can place it neatly to the near side post from the corner.

THE progress of the fast scoring Dixie Dean who passed the 300 mark early this season, is a threat to the record of 351 attained by Steve Bloomer after 21 years of first-class football.

THE famous Everton leader already holds the record of 50 goals in one season.

A record which has stood for 12 years was broken at White Hart Lane, where 57,246 people attended the First Division match between Tottenham Hotspur and Arsenal, their first meeting for five years.

THIS eclipses the previous best, on the occasion of the Aston Villa Cup tie, by more than 2,000.

CHARLES Buchan states it was the finest struggle between local rivals he has ever seen.

In addition to that at White Hart Lane there were big crowds at Millwall and Stamford Bridge on the same day. The aggregate attendance at the five League matches in London exceeded 157,000.

THE actual figures given here show that football's grip on the public has not relaxed.

Tottenham v. Arsenal .. 57,246
Chelsea v. Aston Villa .. 45,000
Millwall v. Fulham .. 22,000
Brentford v. Manchester Utd. .. 18,000

5 MINUTES FOOTBALL GET FIT AND STAY FIT

FOOTBALL TRAINING FOR AMATEURS

(By "Saracen")

The amateur footballer makes a great mistake in not getting thoroughly fit at the beginning of the season. If he would only follow the example of the professional in getting down to the job he would save himself great trouble afterwards and moreover he would both enjoy and play the game better.

Once fit always fit. Provided a man does not dance himself tired and lose too many hours of sleep. This is the principle on which the professional training is carried out and it has been proved sound. Whilst it can prove to be simple to keep fit, it is often very difficult to get into condition.

When professionals first return to their clubs they get into their kit plus a high necked sweater and go out for a fast walk for about six miles. The object of this is not so much to reduce weight as to get rid of any poisons which may have been allowed to gather in the system. One thing to guard against is a blistered heel. This is important if a deal of trouble is to be avoided.

These walks go on for about a week and perhaps a little slow running is also done on the field. In the second week the men put on their spiked shoes and faster work is done. This is the time when massage may be required because running in spikes is at first very liable to harden the muscles of the calves and cause pain. Sprinting is, of course, undertaken to assist the men to breathe easily and freely.

To get as fit as is almost possible takes no longer than a fortnight or three weeks unless a man has put on a lot of weight during the summer and afterwards it is only a question of keeping fit. Indeed, the subsequent training of the professional is only designed to keep the wind sound.

If as I have suggested the amateur would devote the time to this hard work, a little sprinting on two evenings a week during the remainder of the season would be all that he required. I assure him too that the trouble is well worth while. Besides you cannot hope to play well unless in such a hard ninety minutes game as football you are thoroughly fit.

MAIN CARRIES TEAM TO VICTORY

BRILLIANT WOOD ON LAST HEAD

SHANGHAI ALL SQUARE IN LAWN BOWLS INTERPORT

BETTER TEAM WINS AT THE KOWLOON CRICKET CLUB

It was left to Tommy Main to play a true captain's part yesterday, and to win for Shanghai the second match of the lawn bowls interport series.

It was his wood which took out Hongkong's shot on the last head with the scores at 19 all and gave Shanghai two shots and victory.

Nobody will deny Main and his men the worthiness of this success. Better bowlers throughout, it would have been hitting below the belt for the goddess of luck to ally herself with the Hongkong team against such splendid bowling.

And quite a different aspect is that by this win, the ideal position has been created. The third interport will now be given its true setting. Everything depends on it.

TOP FOR HIS FORM.

Main has never bowled better in Hongkong than he did yesterday. Hollands was good, that is in the conventional way, but Main revealed something more. There was a touch of genius in some of his deliveries.

Furthermore he enjoyed better support than Hollands. Richards, for instance, was almost without blemish at No. 3, and Malcolm and Bailey, although not always sure about the pace of the green, generally had a wood to beat Ramsay and Hyde-Lay.

TRAGIC AFTERNOON.

Hyde-Lay had a tragic afternoon. The occasion seemed much too big for him, and although playing on his own green, committed many errors.

Ramsay was not up to his usual standard, and Fred Jones, in his anxiety to avoid being short, was often too weighty.

Consequently Adam Hollands had a fairly stiff burden to shoulder, and it was largely his fighting game which kept the result open until the last head.

There was a thrilling climax. With his second wood, Ramsay laid a dead shot completely covering the jack. Efforts to dislodge it were of no avail until Jones, attempting to make a block, put too much weight on his wood and disturbed a perfect position. With his next wood the Civil Service player regained the shot, but Main, with a superb delivery, took out the jack and rested it near two Shanghai back woods.

"SIXERS" AT H.K.C.C.

BIG HITTING BY R. H. GRIFFITHS

WICKETKEEPER-BOWLER

Norman Mackay, formerly wicketkeeper-batsman for the K.C.C. first team, yesterday developed into a successful bowler, when, playing for the Kowloon Cricket Club second eleven, he took five K.C.C. wickets for 42 runs.

His effort was unavailing. F. A. Dunnett was hit unmercifully, especially by R. H. Griffiths, who in scoring 85, made 17 runs in one over including two hits out of the ground.

The Hongkong Cricket Club won the second holiday fixture by 114 runs, outplaying the visitors from the start.

J. E. Potter (25), H. J. D. Lowe (20) and R. O. P. King (13 not out) were, in addition to Griffiths, the chief contributors to the Hongkong total of 184.

The K.C.C. started promisingly in reply. Mackay and G. Lee scoring 39 for the first wicket. Thereafter Lawson and Meeks had things all their own way and dismissed the side for 70. Lawson took 5 for 13 and Meeks 3 for 5.

Fine All Round Display

The fine all round display of Mr. C. B. R. Sargent made possible the defeat of A. Prata's XI by the Diocesan Boys' School.

The headmaster took 4 wickets for 34 runs, being assisted by Lee (4 for 24) who helped to dismiss Prata's team for 90.

Mr. Sargent then rattled up 36 out of a total of 112. M. Arculli was the most successful bowler, capturing 4 for 35.

AT CRAIGENGOWER TO-DAY.

SHANGHAI BOWLERS' STIFF TEST.

This afternoon the Shanghai bowlers meet the Craighower Cricket Club rink, the match starting at 3.30.

The Club is turning out a strong four, and the visitors will have to be at their best to win.

Craighower will be represented by:

HOLIDAY MAMAK HOCKEY

C.B.A. REGISTER ANOTHER WIN

Although fielding a depleted side, the Central British Association had no difficulty in recording a win of 2-0 against the R.A.M.C. in a Mamak Tournament game at Sookunpoo yesterday. They were without the services of two of their star men, Polo and Johnson, who were included in the South Wales Borders side against the Jats. This meant a reshuffling of the side, and MacNider was brought in at back in place of Polo. Hirst playing at inside-left with Gurevitch on the wing, King being transferred to right-wing.

The game generally was scrappy with the C.B.A. continually attacking. But for the brilliant goal-keeping of Polo and the steady play of Capt. Gore and Lane, the Medical Corps would have gone under by a much larger margin. The forwards were weak, lacking combination and speed. The C.B.A. forwards on the other hand combined well, although Francis was slow and missed several sitters. Hirst and T. Whitley were the pick, with King doing some useful work on the wing. Of the halves Allen was outstanding. Bickford did some hard hitting at back and broke up a number of attacks. Moss in goal was tested on three occasions only.

It was not until the last five minutes of the first half that the C.B.A. found the net. They had bombarded the Corps goal time and time again, but Polo was safe. Then T. Whitley, taking a pass from Gurevitch, netted from a difficult angle on the right. Early in the second half Hirst increased their lead from a pass by Whitley, and before the end Whitley added his second from a melee in the circle. The teams were:

C.B.A.—G. Moss; B. I. Bickford, S. MacNider, F. W. R. Allen, N. Whitley, Halford; J. J. King, T. Whitley, C. C. Francis, W. Hirst and G. Gurevitch.
R.A.M.C.—Capt. Gore, Lane, Carey, Neale, Tilley, Parry, Whitechurch, Colledge, Cassoon and King.

PRACHT THWARTS ST. ANDREW'S

Close Win Against German Club

St. Andrew's gained their first points in the Mamak Tournament yesterday when they defeated the German Club by the narrow margin of two goals to nil.

The play generally was quite good, although the Saints were below their usual form. They attacked most of the time but at the interval led by only one goal, scored by E. F. Fincher. Brilliant defending by the backs, Pracht especially, saved the Germans from heavier defeat.

After half-time the Saints' second goal was netted by N. A. E. Mackay. The goal was a doubtful one, it being claimed that it was shot from outside the circle. Muller just missed reducing the lead during a splendid burst in the second half.

Jats Score Nine.
On the Marina ground yesterday afternoon the Jats regimental eleven proved too fast for the South Wales Borders, winning by nine goals to nil, in a friendly hockey match.

The teams consist of the best eight shots in the companies irrespective of rank.

At the conclusion of the shoot the scores are checked and telegraphed to the other interport sides, and, after comparisons have been made, the winner is announced. Last year Shanghai were the victors, though it is thought that Singapore would have carried off the honours if they had not been compelled to fire a man short, their individual average being well over that of the winning team. The eight chosen to represent the Singapore Volunteers have been in active practice during the past few weeks, this interport shoot being regarded as one of the main competitive events of the year.

EXTRAORDINARY MATCH FOR GOVERNOR'S CUP

(By "Veritas").

Frayed tempers, resulting in an abnormal number of fouls as well as an excessive use of the whistle prevented the orderly progress of the Governor's Cup match yesterday on the Club ground, but this could not rob the game of its colourful exchanges and exciting incidents.

The Rest beat the Combined Chinese (in this case the complete Chinese Athletic team) by the odd goal in seven in the first leg of the re-organised competition.

They accomplished this in the face of two missed penalties, an unwarranted display of unrestrained antagonism on the part of the Chinese, and about as much bad luck as any team could experience.

Referee Baldwin was given a most distasteful task, for on two occasions he was forced to give marching orders to Wong Sik-ping for an amazing show of red-hot temper, and in the closing stages of the game, he was faced with a hostile demonstration by the Chinese spectators.

PLAYING PITCH INVADDED.

He incensed them by signalling a goal for a shot which he thought the ball so much as he. He figured directly in almost every attack on the Chinese goal. Furthermore he was a big success. When in possession he always threatened danger, and he scored a couple of good goals, including the fourth in the dying minutes of the game.

Elliot of Kowloon showed himself to be a fine constructive leader, but his finishing lacked the same qualities. He was notable in the first half for some splendid swinging passes to the wings, and always he was a willing worker.

HARRIS HAPPY.

Harris was the other member of the Big Three who upset the Chinese defence. Well fed by Perkins, Pardee, and Gomes, the speedy Borders winger had things pretty well in his own way. His falling was a persistency to shoot from acute angles, when a square pass across the goal might have produced more profitable results. But as a raider, and a very dangerous one too, he demanded respect from the Chinese rearward.

Gomes and Hocquard were not successful. The former had no confidence in his shooting powers and thereby lost more than one opportunity, whilst Hocquard, given a real shaking up in the first five minutes displayed little desire to try conclusions with his opposing half and full back, and could make little headway.

The Rest halves did not enjoy any real superiority until late in the game, but throughout they were sound and tenacious. Pardee covered a lot of ground and remained constructive right through, whilst Perkins was a rare spoiler. McQuire gave a mediocre display.

Allan and Strange, although individually good, did not cover particularly well and showed signs of being caught napping more than once.

CHINESE FAILING.

If the Chinese had paid a little more attention to the ball and less to the man, they might have made a deeper impression.

The forwards were clever and moved the ball with their customary speed and precision. But they were backed up by the halves and the Rest attack and attending to the needs of their own vanguard too much for them.

Of the defence only Li Kwok-ki produced the form expected. Time and again he saved, ramping drives which were dead on the mark, whilst once he marvellously got to a ball which was dropping under the bar and tipped it over for a corner.

Lo Hong-cheung, at right back, although vigorous, managed to keep within the confines of fair play, but Wong, even before his dismissal, was very unstable.

Li Kwok-chui was the pick of the half backs, who were frankly disappointing and far below the form

Adelaide, Oct. 10.

The texts of the cables, revealed following the receipt of the M.C.C.'s reply, show that the negotiations were most friendly.

The Australian Board of Control agrees that leg theory has been practised for years without any objection yet its continued practice would not be in the interests of the game. They hoped the M.C.C. would concur, and thus enable the teams to take the field in 1934 with that knowledge.

The M.C.C. have replied that they appreciate the friendly tone. The Australian team could certainly take the field with the full knowledge and assurance that cricket would be played in the same spirit as in the past with the single desire to promote the best interests of the game in both countries.—Reuter.

Still Dissatisfied.

London, Oct. 10.

As a result of the publication of the texts of the friendly interchange of cables between the M.C.C. and the Australian Cricket Board, the British press says the "body-line" controversy is over.

Reports from Sydney and Melbourne announce general satisfaction also. But it is understood that Mr. Kelly, and other members of the Australian Board from Victoria, are dissatisfied. Exception is taken to the fact that no definite assurance is given that "body-line" bowling will not be used in future.—Reuter.

TO-DAY'S MAMAK GAME.

The Mule Corps will be represented by the following:
Bagh Ali; Mehr Din; Jam; Imam Ali; Fazal Dad, Mohamed Khan, Ashiq Mohammed; Mir Ahmed; Atta Mohammed; Major Eve; S/Condr. Denkes, Rahmat Ullah.

shown against South China last Sunday week.

THE FIRST INCIDENT.

The first incident was the award of a penalty to the Rest. Hocquard, who a minute before, had been limping, was called over to take it and he shot straight at Li who cleared with ease. Almost immediately afterwards Pardee surprised the Chinese defence by sending in a gentle, but well directed shot from outside of the penalty area. It left Li unsighted and put the Rest one up.

The Chinese got on level terms through Au Kim-keung, and after Elliott had had real bad luck from close in, Au Kim-keung put the Chinese ahead. They held the lead only a short time, Ridley working his way through to beat Li with a glorious drive.

Then came Wong's dismissal. Li had saved a difficult shot and was stretched out on the ground with the ball. Gomes, quite legitimately tried to kick the ball out of his arms, and Wong rushed up and deliberately charged Gomes in the chest sending him spinning.

Hocquard was entrusted with the second penalty, but in his anxiety to score it clear of Li, missed the upright by inches.

Elliott put the Rest ahead in the second half as a result of good opportunism, and for a long period the Chinese were defending desperately. Continually they charged down shots which were right on the mark.

Then came a breakaway and Ho Kau-keung registered the equaliser with the Rest defence spreadeagled. Undismayed the Rest took the ball down and bombarded the goal. A corner was forced and from it Ridley drove the winning shot into the net.

S.W.B. REGATTA RESULTS

"C" COMPANY SENIOR TEAM DISQUALIFIED

HEADQUARTERS WIN

The 24th Regimental Regatta of the South Wales Borders held at the Royal Yacht Club this morning resulted in Headquarters winning the Inter-Company Rowing Shield by two points.

Last year's holders, "C" Company would have held the shield again but for their disqualification in the 2,000 Yards Senior team race in which they crossed in front of Headquarters' boat.

The results were:—
2,000 Yards Senior—1, H.Q.; 2, "A"; 3, "B".
2,000 Yards Junior—1, "C"; 2, "A"; 3, H.Q.; 4, "B".
1,000 Yards Novices—1, H.Q.; 2, "C"; 3, "A"; 4, "B".

"A" Company came second with aggregate points of 8, "C" was third with 7, and "B" last with 4.

AN AUTOMATIC BED MAKER

WORK SAVING CLAIM BY INVENTOR

London. "You have made your bed—now lie in it!" This age-old promise of retribution will become very simple, according to a Mr. G. A. Shakespeare, of London.

For Mr. Shakespeare claims to have invented an automatic bed-maker.

First news of his revolutionary plans for the housewife appeared in the form of an advertisement in The Times.

"Domestic invention of the age needs marketing. Cheap, single labour-saving bed-making device; irresistible appeal to millions."

Mr. Shakespeare was at once the magnet to which dozens of lady reporters were attracted for a "story." Everyone who spends valuable minutes every morning struggling to replace into position a crumpled mass of bedclothes, saw salvation in the invention.

No more pillow-pummelling; no more irritating tugging at a heavy bedstead to "tuck in" on the side nearest to the wall; no more peevishness in the early morning.

Mr. Shakespeare claims that his bed-maker will save every mother of five (beds) twenty minutes each morning.

The invention consists of three rods. The sheets and blankets are placed in alignment at the foot of the bed. The loose rod is placed across the bedclothes, which are then wrapped round it once.

Over them is placed a clip consisting of two other rods held together by springs over the other rod so that it grips firmly. The bedclothes are then hung over the mattress at the end of the bed and remain "made."

It sounds complicated, but Mr. Shakespeare says it works as easy as A.B.C.—Reuter.

ment if they do not obey the orders of the Manchukuo nominee who replaced the arrested Soviet chief of the depot at Manchukuo.—Reuter.

Tokyo, Oct. 10.

The Yomiuri urges that unless the Soviet apologises and withdraws the allegations, the Tass Agency in Tokyo should be closed and the Railway negotiations here (for the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway) discontinued. The paper is inclined to align itself with the reactionaries who are urging the severance of relations with the Soviet.

INTENSE INDIGNATION.

Intense indignation at Moscow's publication of the alleged Hishikari documents is expressed by the War Office, where a spokesman intimated that the Army is insisting that the Foreign Minister, Mr. Hirota, protest strongly, backing his protest with a demand for complete retraction and an admission that the documents are spurious, together with a warning that stern action will be taken if the Soviet declines.

Denying that General Hishikari is planning to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway with the co-operation of Manchukuo, the Foreign Office spokesman emphasized that if trouble with the Soviet was contemplated, the Sixth Division would not have been withdrawn to Japan. The withdrawal of this Division has been nearly completed.—Reuter.

The Soviet General Manager of the C.E.R. has countermanded all orders issued by the Manchukuo assistant manager, resulting in serious complications.

Manchukuo is considering counter measures.—Reuter.

FRESH AND FAIR

ILLEGAL FILM STORING

CHINA SOUND PICTURE CO., SUMMONED

Mr. Lai Pak-hoi, managing director of the China Sound Picture Company, summoned before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, for having carried on a business of film storing and repairing on the ground and first floors of an unnumbered house in Lee Gardens and having stored 113 reels of cinematograph films on the premises, was fined $20 on the first summons and $50 on the second.

Mr. D. L. Strellett appeared for the defendant, and pleaded guilty.

Mr. J. C. FitzHenry, Deputy Superintendent of the Fire Brigade, said that he visited the premises on September 29 and found the ground floor fitted out as a cinematograph printing, repairing and drying rooms, while the first floor was used as cubicles for employees. The 113 reels of films were found in various parts of the premises. The Company had just recently been formed, being a branch of the United Photoplay Services.

Mr. Schofield—Have they any studio in Hongkong?

NOT DANGEROUS.

Mr. FitzHenry—It is not exactly a studio, but a place for printing films. The house is near the old Lee Garden theatre, and is fairly well isolated. Any fire would not affect other places near by.

Mr. Strellett—I think it would not affect another house at all.

Mr. Schofield—It might, possibly by a spark.

Mr. Strellett—Possibly in a typhoon. The defendants have recently taken these premises, and plans are being prepared for submission to the police authorities. The films are only brought there for printing, and are then returned to registered places. These premises will in due course be registered.

Mr. FitzHenry—The only serious difficulty is that fact that the floor is used for domestic purposes. There would be no objection to the place being registered, and it will also be approved as a place fit for storage in due course.

ST. TERESA CHURCH

BUILDING FUND ACCOUNTS

At a meeting of the members of the Committee for Building the Church in honour of St. Teresa at Kowloon Tong, the accounts presented showed that the handsome total of $101,330.60 has been received, the greatest portion of it donated by the Portuguese community, during the past three years.

The expenditure has amounted to $144,363.85, with outstanding accounts amounting to $16,100.00 and making a total cost $160,463.85 against a total contribution of $101,330.60.

Bishop Valitoria proposed, and Mr. L. Barton seconded the adoption of the accounts which was carried unanimously.

Chev. J. M. Alves, Vice-President, expressed confidence that with a new effort this debt could be cleared off.

Bishop Valitoria warmly thanked the Committee for their efforts in collecting for the Building Fund, and especially he thanked Chev. J. M. Alves and nine other very generous donors for their liberal contributions.

The names have been called Benefactor Founders of the Church and their names have been engraved in two special marble slabs placed in the Church wall at the principal door in token of gratitude of the present and future generations.

BANKRUPTCY COURT

MONEY TAKEN OUT OF BUSINESS

The public examination of the Tak Wo Pawn Shop, and Chau Poon, managing partner, was continued before the Chief Justice, Mr. J. R. Wood, in Bankruptcy Jurisdiction this morning when Chau gave further evidence. He stated that all the partners of the shop were also partners of another pawn shop. One of the partners was bankrupt.

In reply to a suggestion by the Deputy Official Receiver that $60,000 had been drawn by the partners from the business at one time or another, debtor agreed that a considerable sum had gone in this manner.

The examination was adjourned.

DIRECTOR'S PROPOSALS

LEGISLATION PENDING

SUPERSTITION OF MASSES

The traditional beliefs of the uneducated Chinese as to the cause of diseases, the means of spread and the factors which affect its course are so at variance with modern teaching that there is little chance of promoting voluntary co-operation between them and the authorities in the matter of the prevention and control of disease until they can be brought to understand the true nature of the problems and are conscious of the usefulness of the measures advocated, says Dr. A. R. Wellington in his annual report on the Colony's medical and sanitary services for 1932.

The proximity of China and the constant intercourse make it harder to overcome prejudices than in the case in countries further afield. The greatest hope lies in propaganda and education brought to the homes through public health nurses working as district visitors or in infant welfare centres and school welfare centres.

Propaganda which does not arouse the interest of the mother and her children has little practical value. However, leaders of opinion in China and leaders of Chinese thought in Hongkong are making vigorous efforts to promote public health and public welfare along lines which have proved successful in the Occident, and the outlook is far more hopeful than was the case a few years ago when Chinese thought on matters of health was unduly swayed by old traditions and theories.

REORGANISATION SCHEME.

The following is a summary of recommendations made for the reorganisation of the medical and sanitary services:—

- (1) That the present cumbersome and inconvenient Public Health and Buildings Ordinance be split into a number of Ordinances each dealing with its own particular sphere of public health activities.
- (2) That the Sanitary Department confine its attention to sanitation in its restricted sense and deal with town cleansing, scavenging, conservancy, etc., etc.
- (3) That the Medical and Health Department consist of five branches, viz., medical, health, laboratory, quarantine, and veterinary, all under one administrative head, the Director of Medical and Health Services.

HEALTH DISTRICTS.

- (4) That the urban areas of Victoria and Kowloon be divided into health districts of approximately 100,000 inhabitants each under a District Health Officer who, in his own district, would be responsible for:—Registration of Births and Deaths and compilation of statistics; House visiting and public health propaganda and education; Maternity and Child Welfare; School Welfare; Industrial Welfare; Dispensary treatment for disease; Food control; Antimosquito measures; Infectious disease control.

ADVISORY BOARD.

- (5) That there be a Public Health Advisory Board whose duty it would be to consider all matters of public health policy.
- (6) That there be hospital accommodation to the extent of one bed per 300 population for general cases and one bed per 3,000 population for infectious disease cases.
- (7) That there be a motor travelling dispensary for the New Territories, Northern Division.
- (8) That there be a dispensary launch for the needs of the 10,000 who live in boats.

The Sanitary Board accepted all the recommendations with the proviso that the Sanitary Board should be expanded and perform the functions of the proposed Public Health Advisory Board.

LEGISLATION PENDING.

The Public Health Committee having been dissolved the Director of Medical and Sanitary Services was instructed to confer with the Attorney General in order that legislation prepared on the lines recommended in the report might be submitted to Government. At the end of the year legislation was still in course of preparation.

ILL-ADVISED POLICE ACTION

Against Performance of Death Rites

STRONG COMMENTS BY SOLICITOR

Three summonses arising out of ceremonies being conducted as obsequies for a dead man brought against Mr. Lee Cheung-hing, of No. 50, Caine Road, were dismissed by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning.

The summonses were that the defendant had made a bonfire to the danger of the public; had allowed musical instruments to be played without permission of the S.C.A. and had caused an obstruction by setting out a large quantity of joss material on the roadway or footpath.

Mr. M. K. Lo, appearing for the defendant, said that as a matter of fact the name Lee Cheung-hing was only the name of the business, as the principal had died ten years ago. The defendant, who was in Court, was really a rent collector.

INDISCRETION.

"In this case," said Mr. Lo, "I ask your Worship not to adjourn it because my instructions are that these summonses should not have been issued at all, and it seems to be a very regrettable exercise of discretion on the part of the police authorities who even applied for such a proceeding."

"I don't believe there will be any dispute as to the facts. The time, date and particulars are not denied. Mr. Lee Cheung-hing was a very well-known Chinese in the Colony. His widow died recently, and as that night was what was called the third week after death, there was a very distinct ceremony to be performed. The joss sticks and so on were burnt inside two iron structures, which had been hired from the Tung Wah Hospital. About ten people were in charge. The music played was absolutely religious, from which all noisy sounds were excluded."

"We have been acting for the family for years, and directly the summons was served, sent a representative to the S.C.A. in order to see about permission being given. But I should have thought that under the terms of this sub-section no permission is required. My clerk was told at the S.C.A. that they had never heard of such an application before. In connection with marriages and funerals no license is necessary, and to say that by burning these sticks in these grilles would make a bonfire to the danger of the public is absolute drivel."

ILL-ADVISED SUMMONSES.

The amount of fine does not matter much, but religious feelings would be injured. These ceremonies will have to be done in connection with the fourth and fifth weeks also. If your Worship agrees there is no offence, I hope no summons will be issued later.

"With regard to this alleged obstruction, it was at 1.30 a.m. and Caine Road was absolutely deserted. I don't know how there could have been any obstruction. I do feel that the whole of the summonses have been ill-adviced."

Sergeant Wagland admitted the fire had been made in an iron construction, but there was the danger of sparks. One spark had actually entered the window of a house.

Mr. Schofield—I understand that the S.C.A. does issue permission for music in connection with funeral ceremonies.

Mr. Lo.—The S.C.A. said they had not given such permission before. I understand that if there is going to be any long procession then permission has to be obtained or if fire crackers are being lighted, but I don't think it is necessary to get permission for music.

Sergeant Wagland said that the obstruction had been 30 feet on one side of the road, but it was not serious being late at night.

MAGISTRATE'S COMMENTS.

Mr. Lo.—We say that every possible precaution was taken. There were dozens of people standing by, and there were also several buckets of water.

Mr. Schofield—I doubt if the summonses can be sustained on the facts put forward. Precautions were certainly taken to prevent the bonfire being a danger. If there was an element of danger, it certainly was not wantonly or negligently. As for the musical instruments, they appear to have been reasonably performed, and the obstruction is admittedly not serious. I think, how-

BOYS' ARCTIC MARCH

HIDE AND SEEK WITH BEARS

COMPASS ONLY GUIDE

Adventure was the magnet that drew a party of British public schoolboys to the wild, trackless, uninhabited forests of the Arctic Circle.

They found it. And when they arrived back in London last month they talked thrillingly about it.

They recalled how they ploughed knee-deep through marshes;

Climbed precipitous rocks; Forded streams;

Crept fatigued at night into their sleeping bags—the temperature ten degrees below freezing point, and

8,000 MILES.

There were 30 boys representing Eton, Harrow, Rugby, Marlborough, Shrewsbury, Tonbridge, Uppingham, Waterhouse, Lancing, Clifton, Stowe, Eastbourne, Epsom, the Leys School, Downside, and Ardingly.

Altogether, the expedition travelled 8,000 miles and spent more than a month in the Arctic wastes.

Nine senior boys will never forget a 12-days journey which they accomplished under the leadership of Surgeon-Commander Murray Lerwick, R.N.

Two days after leaving the base camp, each carrying food and equipment weighing 40lb., they were weary and footsore.

Teeth set, they went on—harder and more vigorous than ever.

As day succeeded day they felt themselves getting fatter and stronger. Their fatigue left them. In the 12 days they waded, climbed, fought their way over 140 miles of the wildest country imaginable.

THEIR ONLY GUIDE.

Thrills helped them along. The thrill of knowing that their only guide was a compass; of seeing birds and animals they had never seen before; of remaining perfectly still and silent as big denizens of the forest floundered past.

Not one person was seen on the outward journey, but on the return march, by a different route, they passed two reindeer farms.

Their food was scientifically prepared on the basis of what strong men hard at work would require. Thus, they ate:

- Dried smoked reindeer meat; Cheese; Dry peas; Chocolate; Dry rye bread; Sugar and butter, and Stews from bilberries which they gathered in the forest.

There was one accident. Assistant-leader Hamilton (an old Shrewsbury boy) broke his leg when jumping across a stream a fortnight ago. A splint was made out of forest wood, and Assistant-leader Hamilton was able to return to England with the party.

MOSQUITOES.

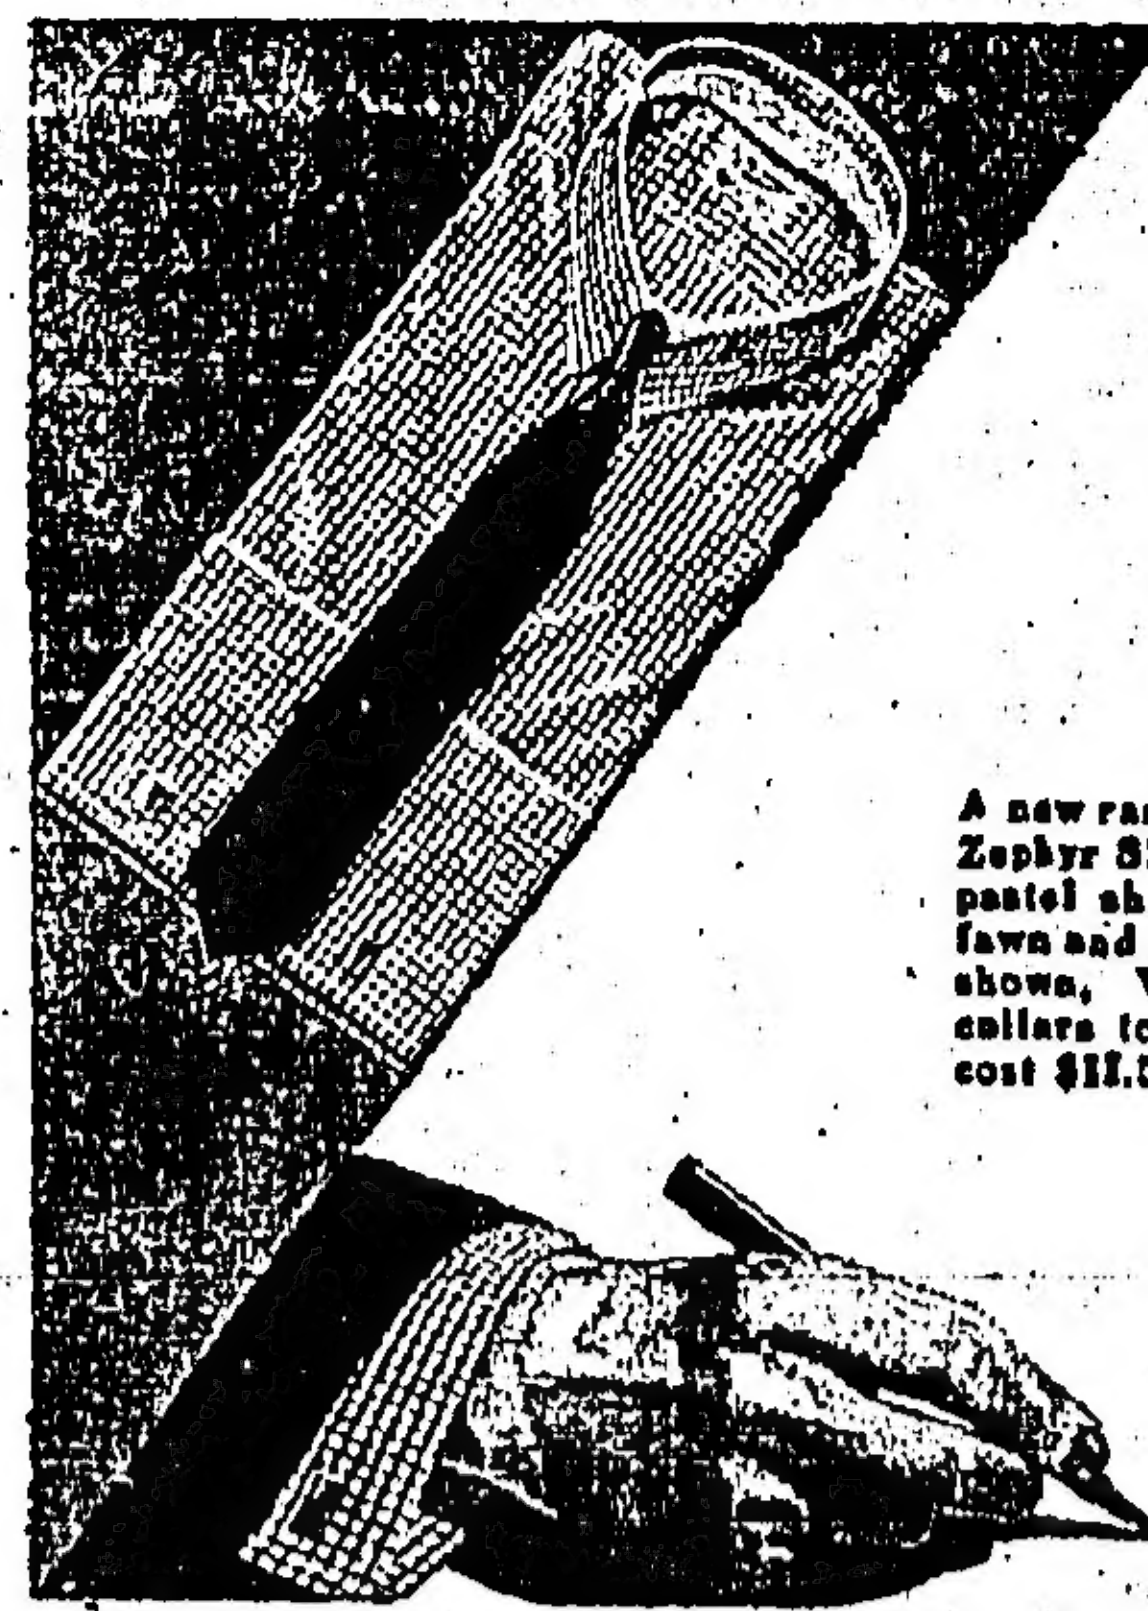

Mr. T. L. Seacombe, of Stowe School, told a reporter: "It was the finest holiday I've had in my life. The mosquitoes were the worst feature. I lost three pounds in weight during the trip, but I can honestly say I've never felt fitter in my life."

Several of the party were engaged in scientific investigations. Mr. D. M. Stainer, of Marlborough College, was in charge of the entomological section. Messrs. A. Mitchell, of Harrow; W. L. Godman, of Stowe; and F. H. Collingridge, of Downside, conducted zoological researches; Mr. M. Gosnell, of Uppingham, was the meteorologist, and Mr. D. Laine, of Rugby, made a special study of Arctic trees.

One-hundred and forty miles in twelve days! It is claimed for the boys that by this march they have set a record which any school team—and possibly older men—will find hard to beat.

The other boys made shorter but instructive journeys, and took cinematograph films and many photographs.

over that defendant would be well advised to maintain care when over he does make such a bonfire. Mr. Lo.—In view of the fact that we have to perform these ceremonies later, I would like to say that obstruction is absolutely inevitable, and if Your Worship finds obstruction in this case you will have to find obstruction in the case of every funeral.

A new range of Summit Zephyr shirts, in soft pastel shades of blue, fawn and grey, is being shown. With two stiff collars to match, they cost $12.50.

This flat-setting cuff may seem a small matter, but it is precisely this attention to every detail of the tailoring that sets the Summit shirt apart from other shirts. And anyhow it's not such a small matter either. For it makes your cuff far more comfortable when you are writing, and keeps it neat and tidy whatever you are doing.

The patterns are, of course, made only for "Summit" shirts.

PRETTY WEDDING

BRIDE GIVEN AWAY BY COLONIAL SECRETARY

Members of the Shamen community were well represented in Hongkong yesterday when the Hon. Mr. D. W. Trautman, C.M.G., Colonial Secretary, and Mrs. Trautman, acted as host and hostess at the Bank House, kindly loaned by Mr. L. N. Murphy, Chief Manager of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, and Mrs. Murphy, on occasion of the wedding of Miss Vida Rosamond Harrison, for a number of years the Confidential Assistant and Stenographer at the Colonial Secretariat, and Mr. Charles Bentley Tredre, a member of the Bank Staff, at present stationed at the Shamen Branch.

The service at St. John's Cathedral, which was choral, was taken by the Rev. N. V. Halward, with Mr. F. Mason, A.R.C.O. at the organ. The hymns sung were "Lead Us Heavenly Father," and "O Perfect Love," and by the special request of Mr. Trautman the Prize Song from the masterings (Wagner) was played on the organ.

The bride entered the Cathedral on the arm of the Hon. the Colonial Secretary, by whom she was given away. Her dress, fashioned by Madame Estelle LeMaitre, late of Hongkong and now of Paris, was of French pearl coloured satin, and was beautifully cut to mould the figure in panels flaring slightly from below the hip line, and forming a novel round train in one with the gown. A ruching of pleated satin finished the entire train edge. Her silk tulle veil, sweeping beyond the hem of the train was held in place by a circlet of seed pearls and orange blossom and she carried a sheaf of white gladioli with jasmine intertwined.

The bridesmaids dresses, made by Madame D'Oby, formed a pleasant illustration of the velvet and lace vogue, the velvet swathing the figure, whilst the fine lace made a deep neckline at front and dropping to a point at the back, and accentuated sleeves. Miss Anne Parkes, the chief bridesmaid, chose lavender and the Misses Jean and Joyce Ferguson, attendant maids, wore smaller editions, but with puff sleeves and mittens. Pale pink roses, tied with lavender ribbon, added a dainty touch in the posies which they all carried.

Supporting the bridegroom were Messrs. G. W. E. True and R. A. Fawcett, colleagues at the Bank, and Mr. J. H. M. Andrew of the Union Insurance Society of Canton.

The Reception.

The 200 guests who were invited to the reception were received by Mrs. Trautman, who was gowned in an attractive tailored vogue in heavy navy silk patterned in red and beige, with smart swaggar coat of navy introducing very pretty shoulder effect, and all accessories including the new "jester" hat in red, with poke-shape eye veil of navy. African daisies were her chosen flowers which matched well in colouring her ensemble, which had been carried out by Madame D'Oby.

Speeches were made by Mr. Trautman and Mr. True, and many congratulatory messages were received from absent ones, foremost being those of the bride's parents from Routh Park, Cardig, and the bridegroom's mother from Ilford, Essex.

RETURN TO GAOL IN TWO DAYS

CHINESE CAUGHT WITH STOLEN SILK

Discharged from Victoria Gaol two days ago, Lam Sang, aged 30, of Chiuchau, was brought before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning, charged with the unlawful possession of a piece of Japanese silk, suspected of having been stolen.

"The detective knows I have been in gaol, so he arrested me," said the defendant.

Det-Sergeant Edwards said the defendant was arrested attempting to pawn the cloth. When apprehended he ran but was caught a few shoes away. He admitted stealing the cloth from a Canton boat the previous day. Police were unable to trace the owner and so a charge of unlawful possession was brought against the man.
